No One Steps Up for the Bullmastiff Like the American Bullmastiff Association

For nearly 50 years, the American Bullmastiff Association has been dedicated to safeguarding this magnificent breed. The ABA continues that commitment today. Through attention to HEALTH, the ABA encourages breeders to perform recommended health screenings on all breeding stock, and invites Bullmastiff owners to help eradicate health issues affecting the Bullmastiff through participation in the DNA blood donation program. Through the national breed RESCUE service, the dedicated volunteers of ABARS rescue, foster, and rehome hundreds of Bullmastiffs each year. Through EDUCATION, the ABA provides information to new or prospective Bullmastiff owners and mentors individuals interested in becoming Bullmastiff judges. Through these and numerous other programs, the ABA steps up for the Bullmastiff to preserve and protect the breed.

In Loving Memory of Bob Spohr

In the early morning hours of Sunday June 15, 2014, the bullmastiff world lost a friend, supporter, mentor, advocate, breeder, and supreme admirer of our breed. Bob Spohr had reached the end of his earthly life and his battle against a terrible disease had ended.

He waged a courageous and lengthy fight but it was a war that he could not win. Bob leaves a legacy of beautiful bullmastiffs carrying the Bastion prefix and even now a new generation scurries about his Boonville, Indiana home with even greater hopes for a bright future. This was the last litter that Bob and Lynn would breed as a team, and thankfully Bob was able to share in the birth and early days of their life.

It is hard to count the ways that another's life impacts your own, but I believe our Bob has done just that on so many levels. As a doctor, as a husband, as a friend and father, he wore many hats. Some of my fondest memories are in his kitchen, listening to him share BBQ recipes, we still have a bottle labeled Bob's rib rub, and we eagerly looked forward to the yearly Christmas package that was sure to contain his famous peanut brittle. And never to be forgotten, the many bullmastiffs, fully grown adult dogs, that climbed eagerly into his lap while he watched the evening news, over flowed it, and with massive behinds and stocky legs hanging haphazardly, his gentle beasts drifted in and out of sleep, happily sharing a contented space with a man they adored.

The memories are many and lovingly remembered. He was taken from us too soon and the world is a bit emptier now without this man in our lives. But his spirit soars around us and as we mourn his passing we will remember his living and the loves in his life. We share the aching hurt and sorrow and grieve with Bob's wife Lynn, and daughter, Heather. A husband and father has gone to a greater, peaceful place now, and his pain has ended. Without doubt, he has met Magnum, Uno, Bunny, and all the other wonderful bullmastiffs with whom he shared his life and that brought him so much joy.

Contributed by family friend Pam McClintock, on behalf of the Breeders Education Committee

Rest well Bob, until we meet again.

Bob is survived by his wife of 39 years, Lynn and daughter, Heather and a granddaughter due in November, 2014.

Blaine LOVES to show, this is evident every time he steps in the ring. He and his handler Katie Martin have never disappointed their fans and friends. You can always find people smiling ringside when Blaine is in the ring!

As a Stud Dog, Blaine has sired a handful litters, the youngest of the 5 litters being just 13 months. He has sired 7 AKC Champions, of those champions, 2 are Specialty winners, 1 is a multiple Specialty winner, 2 are group winners, 4 are multiple group placers, 3 are invited to the ABA Top 25, and 4 sons are in the AKC Top 25. As a companion Blaine is loyal, sweet and funny. Blaine loves his stuffed animals, and will carry them anywhere, especially his "Hedgie." He will steal clothes from your suitcase, he will steal your shoes when you aren't looking, most of all Blaine will steal your heart!

FROM THE EDITOR

My beloved Primo and me, one week after his win at the 2011 National

I love the excitement leading into the ABA National Specialty. I love chatting with my friends, trying to predict who will attend and who is a contender or who might be a wild card. In fact, I begin to look forward to the next National the second we load up and pull out of the current National!

In about a month, we will head to historic Gettysburg Pennsylvania, and time is ticking fast. In anticipation of such a high caliber show, I decided to dedicate this issue to the most discussed aspects of showing your Bullmastiff. Included in this Bulletin are articles on handling, judging, sportsmanship, showing in multiple arenas, photos from select specialties, even photos and results from other prestigious Bullmastiff shows around the world.

As always, the Pre National Specialty Bulletin always features the Top 25 Contenders. This year we have a record number of Top 25 Advertisers, and have included the new Top 10 BOS Honorees. I hope, as you flip through this issue you get a real feeling of how hard these invited dogs have worked throughout the year and a small taste of their long lists of accomplishments.

I hope everyone has a fun and safe time at the 2014 National Specialty. Please remember to play fair, be respectful and clean up after your dogs, be kind to hotel staff, and lend a hand to others. Make it the National of a Lifetime!

Did you hug your Bullmastiff today?

PERFORMANCE STAR

"Tanner"

NAT/INTER/AM. GCH TONDRA'S MIX IT UP DARLING!
- CD RN NJP CGC OFA

I have actively been showing my bullmastiffs for just 21 years now participating in several different venues such as AKC, UKC, and IABCA. I pride myself in owner/handling my dogs at all of these venues. I enjoy "playing" in several different arenas such as Confirmation, Obedience, Rally, Agility and Tracking.

SOME HIGHLIGHTS OF TANNER AND MY PARTNERSHIP:

IN THE CONFORMATION RING

Best of Opposite in Sweepstakes & Best Dog in Futurity at the 2010 National Specialty
Earning our National, International, American Championship &
our American Grand Championship

SO FAR IN THE WORKING RINGS:

CD (Obedience title)
High in Trial & Highest scoring Champion Bullmastiff at the 2012 National Specialty in Obedience
RN (Rally title)
CGC (Canine Good Cit.)
NJP (Agility title)
2 legs towards our NAP (agility title - We will get that last leg yet!)

Tanner is currently 4.5 years old but you would not know that on the agility course! People always ask me "are you really going to run that dog, he's pretty big for this" They watch him walk to the start line all mellow and then he takes off like a bullet and they come back and say "WOW was not expecting that out of him! Every title with Tanner is a huge accomplishment, thrill, and icing on the cake for me! He is a very exciting and exuberant working dog with a very sound temperament and I am thrilled to have him in my life!

Health Pioneers

Over the years bullmastiff breeders have left their mark on the conformation, temperament and health of the breed. By decisions they made decades ago they have had great influence on the dogs we see today. Only in the past few decades has breeding become more scientific and changed the landscape of information available within the breed. The first bullmastiff hip x-ray sent into the OFA was taken on April 1, 1974 over 40 years ago, many breeders were using x-ray as a tool in their breeding programs. Science is forever changing and giving us more and more amazing testing tools to make informed decisions for the health and wellness of our breed. Statistical studies and databases to track are tools that today's breeder uses but certainly, the environment and culture came from those passionate historians who did their best to leave the breed a little bit better than they found it. Today we stand on the shoulders of those who came before us. We thank all of you who have had a hand in helping to improve the health of our breed by using those available tools all those years ago, thank you for your guardianship and advocacy of our breed.

Cardiac DNA Repository & Study

Discover the genes associated with Sub-Aortic-Stenosis (SAS) and Pulmonic-Stenosis (PS). SAS and PS are inherited and there are certain genes that have been identified in other breeds, that cause SAS and PS. Two normal parents can produce affected offspring. Severe SAS can cause immediate death and treatment of mild SAS often requires expensive beta blockers. Heart issues differ between breeds and must be studied, chromosomes mapped and genes identified on a breed-by-breed basis. More information and a form for this study is on the ABA webpage. Those that wish to have their dog participate in the repository and

Study:

It's as easy as 1-2-3 !

1. One completed OFA Cardiology Echo by a DACVIM

(note: be sure to include the pulmonic and aortic velocity flow rates as these are not automatically on the form)

2. Two ml of blood.

3. Three generation pedigree.

Top Cardiologist in dogs today, Dr. Joshua Stern DVM, PhD, DACVIM Cardiology at UC Davis is in charge of this study. This information will be stored at UC Davis in a confidential Bullmastiff cardiac repository and once we have enough dogs banked, we can request funding for an AKC CHF bullmastiff specific cardiology study.

We need 48 PS dogs, 48 SAS dogs, and 48 normal dogs!

These initiatives have approval and support from the head AKC CHF Chief Scientific Officer, Veterinarian and researcher - Dr Shila Nordone, Phd.

We therefore need all of our owners and breeders to participate in this incredible opportunity!

ABARS RESCUE REPORT

AMERICAN BULLMASTIFF ASSOCIATION RESCUE SERVICE

meet
Stevie

This issue's writer, Camille Barrineau is an attorney in Ocala, FL, who has been an ABARS foster for seven years. (7/14)

Our current foster, Stevie, has been with us about 10 days. She was depressed and in poor physical condition when she came into rescue about a month and a half ago. Stevie was first kennelled because rescue didn't have a foster home for her. By the time that we got her her physical condition was rapidly improving, but we weren't sure how she would do in the house. Stevie has exceeded every hope and expectation. She is gentle, loving, kind and funny. She loves to give licks. She is my son's constant companion. Paxton is a really high energy little boy. Stevie lies near him as he whoops and hollers and runs all around with his loud toys. She never gets flustered.

Stevie had entropion surgery and couldn't see well when she came to our house. But as her vision has improved she's become a complete settled member of the family. Her hair is growing back in the big bald spot on her back. She's constantly wagging her tail and saying Hi. She's quick to stretch out on the living room floor next to Opie and just be a dog.

I know that Stevie will be with us for a while because of her health concerns. I'm really excited to watch her get better, and to watch her grow. Through rescue I get the opportunity to watch a frightened, ugly, defensive dog learn to be a part of the family - to relax - to know that she's safe. And eventually I'll get to help find Stevie the perfect family. Matching the dog to the right home is an awesome experience. Talking to the owners months or years down the road - getting the updates and photos and phone calls and emails - makes me really really proud. Not everyone can say that they make lives better, but as a volunteer for ABARS I get to do that every day.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED!

ABARS is very grateful to all our volunteers who foster for us. It is very unusual that we get a dog like Jesse so this story is not meant to discourage someone who is willing to foster but may not be willing to commit to six plus years. Normally a dog is fostered for one to two months. It is the older dogs that are harder to re-home typically because adopters are afraid to adopt a dog that they are not sure they will have for more than a year or two.

PLEASE CONSIDER VOLUNTEERING YOUR TIME TO RESCUE

Tune

MBISS CH TRU GRIT MUSCLE MAYHEM RN ROM X DANIER'S SHE'S A CANDIAN BABE 06.28-2007 ~ 07-30-2014

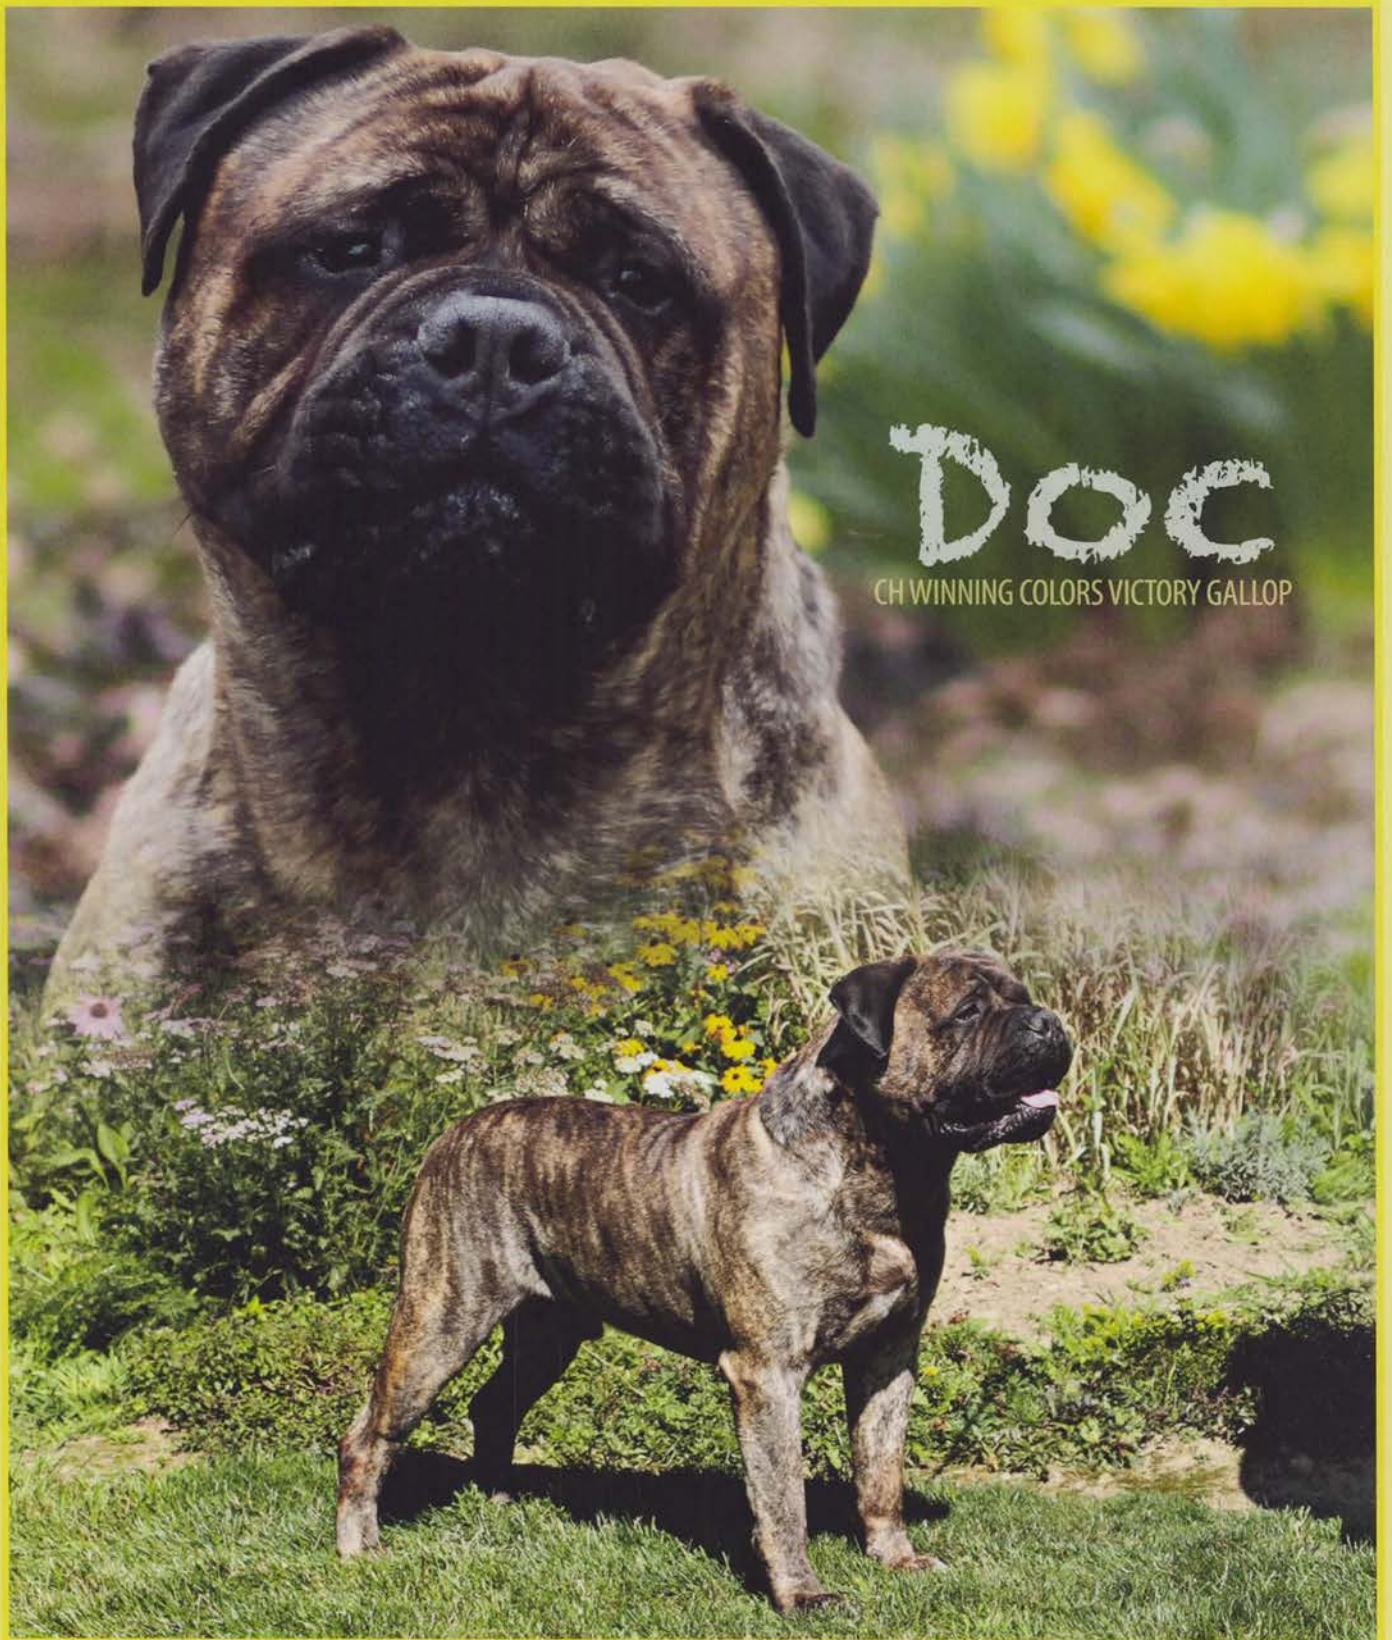

Words cannot explain how much Tune is missed. She was my daily joy and my Best Friend. Every moment of my life I yearn for her silly smile, and her classic hug that had an ability to envelope your heart and soul.

Tune is the foundation for dal Primo. In two litters she produced us eleven puppies, of which only two were bitches. Both females have permanently stayed with us at dal Primo, Piper (09) and Envy (12). In Piper's second litter, we were blessed with our Duckie, dal Primo's Rubber Duck Dynasty, she is a double grand daughter of our Tune, and a tripled on our beloved Primo, Tune's sire, who we lost in 2012. Piper's son Oliver GOH dal Primo's Oliver with a Twist, from her first litter, alongside his handler Kristen O'Brien, were Best Junior Handler at the 2014 Westminster Kennel Club with an entry of nearly 100 Junior Handlers competing! Tune's devotion to people run deep through her descendants.

Although Tune did not love to show, we attended the 2012 National Specialty in Norcross GA. There, with her friend Lisa Heffner, she attained her first leg towards her Rally title, with zero formal training or experience! She followed that up, with Best Brood Bitch, alongside her two sons, Ronin and Seven, under Judge Denise Barton. Tune's memory will be carried on through her children and grandchildren. She has THREE sons currently qualified for the 2014 OBO Top 25 and in the current OHC Top 10. These three boys are Seven, Ronin, and Joker, sired by our Blaine. We are fortunate to have Willow, dal Primo's Spirit of Winning Colors, included in the dal Primo program, sired by Tune's son Seven. Willow is a stunning Tune grandkid and very much her grandmother in personality.

I cannot begin to thank her for everything she has given me. Tune was a true Bullmastiff bitch, her tenacity and loyalty is missed beyond measure.

Owned and dearly missed by her family at dal Primo Bullmastiffs

Doc

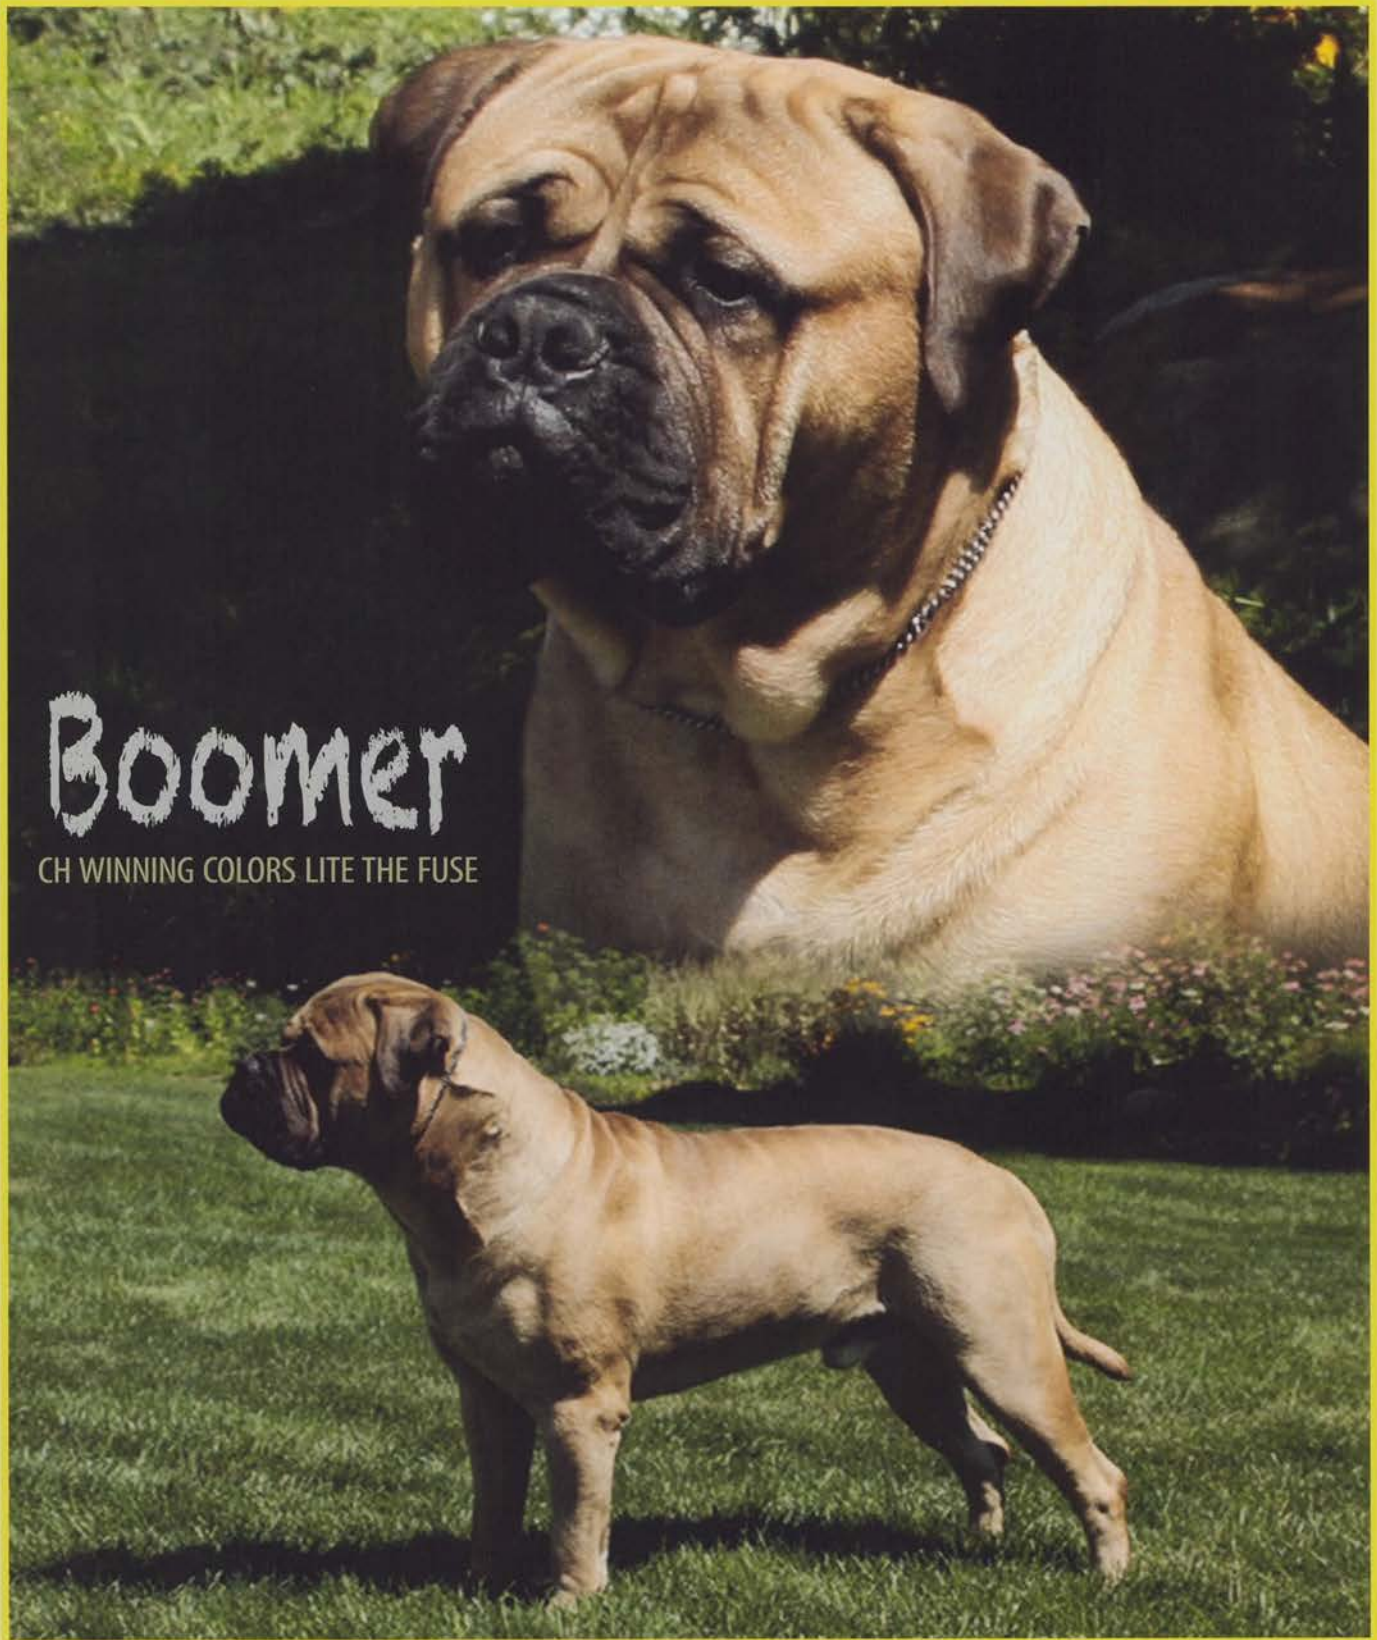

CH WINNING COLORS VICTORY GALLOP

INT CH LEATHERNECK'S DANG YANKEE X CH GAILWIN'S WINNING COLORS RN - DOB: 4/29/09

Doc lives with Mike and Deb Hart and is co-owned with Winning Colors Bullmastiffs. Doc is a very nice moderate boy who stands 26.5" and weighs 135 pounds. He is very balanced with an outstanding temperament, plenty of bone, a large square head, extremely wide bottom jaw with a level bite, a level top line and short back, with a strong front and rear, tight feet, and moves clean coming and going while correctly covering ground. Doc finished his AKC Championship very quickly completely breeder/owner/handled. Doc has all his health clearances and stands at stud to approved bitches.

Boomer

CH WINNING COLORS LITE THE FUSE

CH INCREDIBULLS DESTINY X GCH WINNING COLORS PERFECTA - DOB: 8/24/12

Boomer was our pick male at Winning Colors from a repeat breeding to CH Incredibulls Destiny. He was an impressive puppy and is maturing into the dog that we imagined he would be. Boomer is a moderate dog, standing at 26 1/4 inches and weighs 130 pounds. Though not yet mature, he has a very square head with a slightly undershot bite, square with good angles, a nice topline, and clean movement.

So far, Boomer and I have enjoyed some impressive wins in the conformation ring. When he was not quite a year old, he went Best of Opposite Sex in Sweeps under Judge Lori Baker-GLBA Supported in Canfield OH; Best In Sweeps under Ellen Vanden Avond-MBF Supported Entry, Winter Classic in Indianapolis, IN; and the next day he was awarded a 4 point major under Judge Ms. Faye Strauss. Boomer finished his championship with his third major win at the Mid Kentucky KC show under Judge Mrs. Patricia Trotter when he was 18 months old. Boomer has all his health clearances and will be coming out occasionally as a special while he matures.

NICO

NEW CHAMPION WINNING COLORS NIC OF TIME

by CH Incredibulls Destiny x GCH Winning Colors Perfecta - DOB: 08.24.12

It is always fascinating to us as breeders when things turn out better than planned. When Karen took Nico home it was to be her forever companion but she wanted the opportunity to show Nico if he matured into a ring worthy competitor. Who would have guessed that her big fawn boy would come out as strong as he did! Nico's show career started with a bang at 15 months old. First time in the ring he went BOB under Judge Mr. James E. Frederiksen, and on to take a group 3 under Judge Ms. Diane Anderson. Nico earned his champion title by 23 months old with very limited showing, taking a couple more BOB's on the way.

Karen and Winning Colors are very proud of this boy's achievements in the ring and except for an occasional appearance in the breed ring. Nico will return to his role as full-time companion and will not stand at stud.

Bruin

GCH Windover's Hey There Handsome x GCH Banstock Bewitched by Highpoint

At Bruin's first show (6 months, 1 day) he took the breed over specials and a Group Four. I knew that I had something special. Bruin finished from the puppy class with 3 majors and 5 Best of Breeds over Specials. It was then I decided to put his Grand Championship on him; what else do you do with a puppy champion? To date, he has 10 group placements and a Reserve Best in Show. I decided to keep showing him to see if he could be in the TOP 25. Now Bruin is at home and growing up while we wait to see what the future holds.

Jagger has multiple Group Placements and multiple Best In Specialty wins. Among the many highlights of Jagger's career are back to back Central Florida Working Group Specialty wins, Select Dog Eukanuba 2012, AOM at Eukanuba 2013, America's #2 Bullmastiff in 2013*, an Award of Merit at Westminster 2014 and back to back ABA Top 25.

Jagger has a perfect bite with a wide under jaw, deep pigment on a square head. Jagger possesses the perfect breed type with correct proportion and fluid movement.

Jagger is an accomplished show dog but what his show career does not convey is his personality. Jagger is a gentle soul that spreads love and affection to all he comes in contact with. Whether at home with his family or in the show ring Jagger exhibits the heart of a champion.

"He is your friend, your partner, your defender, your dog. You are his life, his love, his leader. He will be yours, faithful and true, to the last beat of his heart. You owe it to him to be worthy of such devotion."

Pixzy

GCH McDonalds Pixzy of the Litter CGC

It all started when I decided to show Pixzy at the Cleveland Crown Classic in December 2013, just for the fun of it. I had not shown a dog in a while. Pixzy received two majors that weekend so we kept going, and by March 8, 2014 she became a finished champion. Pixzy was doing so well we decided to keep showing and go for her Grand Championship. She completed her Grand Championship on May 24th, 2014. We were very flattered and encouraged by Pixzy's many wins. I could not believe it. I was so honored and pleased to be included with all the other great bullmastiffs. I had a lot of fun showing Pixzy this year with my handler Ashley Schaffter.

I want to thank the judges that felt she was worthy of such placement. Pixzy also has her International Championship and her CGC title. She is also a Working Therapy/Service dog which attests to her calm and easy going nature.

Pixzy is a very healthy dog as well. Her hips are OFA Good, her heart, eyes and thyroid are all OFA Clear. Pixzy is number 8 in the ABA Best of Opposite Sex Rankings and the #1 Grand Champion Bitch in Ohio. Pixzy has been bred and this will be her first litter and her pups are due early Fall. We will be showing her babies in the future.

How many years have you been showing Bullmastiffs? Do you feel Bullmastiffs are your specialty?

Egad, I'm old! I can't remember exactly when I first showed a Bullmastiff. Having grown up with a father who was a handler that specialized in working breeds, I was able to show many breeds at a very young age. I'm guessing that it has been about 20 years since I became more active with the breed. I'm not sure that I would consider them my specialty, but I am VERY comfortable with discussing the breed standard with anyone! I am always happy to mentor people who are looking to apply to judge Bullmastiffs or who are just curious about the breed. I have been able to co-breed litters with Victoria Clausell, which allowed me to become a breeder of merit with very few litters bred. Bullmastiffs are very near and dear to my heart!

What do you feel a Bullmastiff must possess to be competitive with the other breeds in the working group? Do you feel the Bullmastiff, in general, gets a fair shot in the Working Group and in Best in Show?

Being competitive in the Working Group requires a dog to have side gait, good head and ATTITUDE! There are 29 breeds currently recognized in the Working Group, so you have to realize that the odds are that you will walk out of the ring without a ribbon. In the Midwest, it is not uncommon to have most of the 29 breeds represented in the group. So to increase your odds of placing, you need a good judge who does understand the breed standards, you need a dog that has qualities that will make it stand out, and the attitude. As far as BIS, I think it is harder for Bullmastiffs, not impossible, just harder. I think that MOST Bullmastiffs don't have the stamina to show that third time in one day.

It takes a special dog to be able to show three times in one day. Remember, maybe the breed didn't take that long to complete, but the group level could have been almost 30 minutes of judging. Then if the Working Group is right before BIS, your dog has to compete immediately for BIS. This is extremely grueling on the dog. To win BIS you have to have not only a good dog, but also have a dog that can go and put on a dazzling show for BIS.

Are there any kind of special characteristics/needs of the Bullmastiff that requires extra care by handlers? Is there anything you wish more handlers paid attention to when housing, traveling with and showing Bullmastiffs?

I don't think that they require "special" care. Many people are very worried about showing Bullmastiffs in the heat. I don't think that they require "special" care. Many people are very worried about showing Bullmastiffs in the heat. I agree, but I don't think that makes them special! Most breeds can't handle the heat well and require extra care! Maybe I was brought up to always remember that each dog that is in our care is someone else's dog and need to be treated carefully. So Tim and I try to be extremely careful with all of the dogs in our care, not just the Bullmastiffs. I do wish that all handlers, regardless of whether they belong to any handler organizations, carry fire extinguishers, medical kits (both dog and human), leashes by exit, and carry insurance on the dogs (care and custody insurance).

What would you consider your greatest accomplishment with a Bullmastiff in the ring?

There are days that I consider that no one got hurt to be an accomplishment! One of the most surprising accomplishments was winning BOW at the 2002 National specialty with a 6 month old puppy. (I think she was 6 months and 6 days.) There were 100 bitches and obviously, many more mature than she was. (<http://clubs.akc.org/aba/special/2002/bitches.htm>)

She is a fawn bitch who has power and substance without losing any of her femininity. She has the most stunning headpiece, has super breadth of skull, excellent eye and ear placement, super breadth and depth muzzle, good bite. Has a well arched neck of good length onto well laid shoulders, straight front with neat feet and lovely depth chest. Excellent body proportions, level topline which she held on the move, excellent rear angulation, good tailset. Was handled to perfection.

JUDGING THE BULLMASTIFF

Anyone who has spent any amount of time observing the bullmastiff will undoubtedly remark upon the inconsistency of type in the breed. This is not only evident when comparing dogs from one area of the country to another, but is also a fairly common occurrence at regional specialties and local weekend shows. This disparity is not due to the lack of attention or due diligence of bullmastiff breeders, but rather, can be attributed to a fairly liberal breed standard as well the difficulty of breeding "true" in a breed with a genetic makeup that includes the extremes of the nineteenth-century bulldog and the mastiff. Yet as Adele Pfenninger writes in the Bullmastiff Handbook, "Interpretation of the standard by each breeder accounts for the differences in each strain, but ultimately and ideally, all [bullmastiffs] should look more alike than they look different." Thus while judges unfamiliar with the breed may find variation in type to be somewhat disconcerting, a recognition and understanding of the quintessential characteristics of bullmastiff breed type will lead to sound, appropriate, and intelligent assessments when judging the bullmastiff.

IT'S HIP TO BE SQUARE

A cursory reading of the bullmastiff standard reveals a number of terms or concepts repeated time and time again. The continued reference to a particular attribute is indicative of its importance to breed type. The most frequently mentioned concept in the bullmastiff standard has to do with proportion. The standard alternatively refers to the bullmastiff as "symmetrical," "nearly square," "compact," "short" backed, and "well balanced." This suggests that an essential bullmastiff characteristic is a nearly square appearance. This may come as a shock to those who have spent any time with the breed as it is quite probable that the majority of bullmastiffs encountered have been more rectangular than square. However, it is important to keep in mind that it is not only size, but also proportion, that distinguish the bullmastiff from the larger and longer mastiff. In profile, and from all angles, the bullmastiff should appear square. Thus when considering the bullmastiff, an important point to remember is that long is always wrong.

The overabundance of long-backed dogs in the ring is not due an inherent misunderstanding of the standard on the part of bullmastiff breeders, but rather, to the difficulty of breeding a short-backed dog that is balanced. Breeders compensate for a lack of balance front and rear by producing a long-coupled dog. Excessive length of body can mask a multitude of structural faults that affect how a dog covers the ground. Remember that a bullmastiff does not require a long back to move well; rather, it is balance - moderate rear angulation and complementary shoulder layback - that makes a good-moving bullmastiff. A square bullmastiff that is structurally correct will move smoothly with power and drive making maximum use of its moderate angulation, just as the standard recommends.

"It is important to keep in mind that it is not only size, but also proportion, that distinguish the bullmastiff from the larger and longer mastiff."

The concept of squareness also applies when considering the bullmastiff head. In the bullmastiff ring, you will undoubtedly find a variety of head types as the liberal bullmastiff standard allows for a range of interpretation. However, it is important to remember that each individual element that comes together in the bullmastiff headpiece should contribute to its square appearance. This not only applies to traits such as the broad, deep muzzle and the large skull with well-developed cheeks, which bullmastiff breeders often refer to as a "cube on a cube," but also to such characteristics as ear set, shape, and size, the width of the underjaw, and eye shape and placement. Rather than think of each of these attributes separately, base your assessment on the degree to which they contribute to the nearly square appearance of the bullmastiff head.

ONLY THE STRONG SURVIVE

Another concept that appears with some regularity in the bullmastiff standard is substance. The bullmastiff is described as "powerfully built" and "showing great strength." Its neck is "very muscular" and almost equal in circumference to the skull; its chest is referred to as "wide and deep," with ribs well sprung and well set down between the forelegs; the loin is "wide and muscular;" the hindquarters "broad and muscular;" the forelegs are "well-boned;" the shoulders are defined as "muscular but not loaded." And as the standard reads, other things being equal, the "more substantial dog" is favored. These points of emphasis provide a fairly vivid image of how the bullmastiff should appear: strong, thick, sturdy, muscular, substantial, and powerful. The determined focus on muscle and substance convincingly removes any doubt as to the incorrectness of dogs that are weedy, rangy, tubey, or fine-boned. It also suggests that it is not enough for the bullmastiff to be solid, but that substance should be an indication of muscle and bone rather than sheer mass attained by too many trips to the food bowl. Because the bullmastiff has a short coat, there is rarely a need to run one's hands over the dog to ascertain whether or not it is well-muscled; it should be visible for all to see. It is interesting to note that, other than a reference to weight range, there is no differentiation between dogs and bitches in the bullmastiff standard in reference to substance. Thus a bitch is a scaled down version of the dog; she is not petite, but substantial relative to her slightly smaller frame.

MORE IS NOT ALWAYS MORE

The emphasis on substance often leads to the false assumption – among judges and fanciers alike - that when it comes to the bullmastiff, bigger is better. This notion fails to consider another recurring and crucial concept in the bullmastiff standard: moderation. A focus on moderation tempers the tendency to breed the extreme characteristics of either the bulldog or the mastiff into the bullmastiff. It takes into consideration the purpose for which the bullmastiff was bred – to knock and hold down poachers on nineteenth-century English estates – and the corresponding need for a dog that was strong, powerful, agile, quick, and moderate. The call for moderation in the standard is evident in both the size parameters as well the description of physical characteristics.

The top of the standard for males is 130 pounds; females are to be no larger than 120 pounds. This is significantly less than the recommended sizes of giant breeds such as the Great Dane, mastiff, and St. Bernard. A correct bullmastiff should never approach these weight categories; unfortunately, many of them do. This meandering into "giant" territory is often the result of a long back, and the extra weight necessary to produce substance in a long-coupled dog. A compact, moderate dog that weighs 130 pounds is all the bullmastiff necessary to handle the job it was bred to do.

The standard also calls for a moderate stop, moderate angulation, a slightly arched neck of moderate length, a topline that is "straight and level" and firm when moving, flews that are "not too pendulous" and a skull that exhibits a fair amount of wrinkle "when alert." These characteristics – individually and collectively - describe a dog that is not exaggerated in any manner. It depicts a dog that is clean, solid, tight, and sound. Thinking of the bullmastiff as a moderate rather than giant breed will help you to disregard the dogs that are too big, too sloppy, too long, and too overdone.

"These characteristics individually and collectively describe a dog that is not exaggerated in any manner. It depicts a dog that is clean, solid, tight, and sound."

CONFIDENCE IS KEY

As Richard Beauchamp wrote in Solving the Mysteries of Breed Type, "Everything in the bullmastiff standard assures us of a dog that will stand its ground and protect at all costs." Thus temperament may be considered the ultimate indicator of bullmastiff breed type. The standard describes the bullmastiff as "fearless and confident, yet docile." Bullmastiff expression is referred to as "keen, alert, and intelligent." Breed function is defined as "a dependable family companion and protector." These collective traits were necessary for the job the bullmastiff was originally bred to do and are appropriate for the duties it instinctively takes on today. These qualities should be taken into consideration

These qualities should be taken into consideration when assessing the bullmastiff in the ring as well as when approaching the individual dog for examination. Do not let the friendliness of most bullmastiffs dissuade you from thinking of the breed as a formidable guard. Although much of the "sharpness" has been bred out of the modern bullmastiff, one should never forget the original working function of the breed and treat the bullmastiff with attentiveness, courtesy, and most important of all, respect. Thus you should never get in a bullmastiff's face, nor should you give it a playful slap on the rump. As it is not uncommon for males in particular to be dog aggressive, one should not pack the dogs in the ring too tightly.

Despite the briefness and liberal nature of the Bullmastiff standard, it is not in any way inadequate or incomplete. By examining it closely for recurring themes and points of emphasis, one can get a very secure sense of what to look for when judging the bullmastiff. If, after reading the standard, you are able to picture a dog that is confident and alert, square in head and body, moderate, powerful and substantial, and balanced front and rear, you are on your way to recognizing the quintessential characteristics of bullmastiff breed type.

BREED DOG vs GROUP DOG

There is frequent discussion regarding dogs defined as either “breed” or “group” dogs. Theoretically, if you have a quality dog, there should be no difference.

Nevertheless, we hear it all the time: “He’s more a group dog” or “He can win in the breed, but he can’t compete in the group.” Why is this? There are many factors going into the decision of a judge at the breed and group level. As a judge of Bullmastiffs and the working group, knowing the nuances of the breed and understanding breed type, it would make no difference to me as long as it is a quality dog. One is judging at the group level against the breed standards, not against each other. If you have a great Bullmastiff, typey, sound with a good attitude and sound movement, it is indeed competitive in the group ring. A professional handler once commented to me that a judge rewarded him a group 4 with a Bullmastiff and remarked “This is the best Bullmastiff I have ever seen!” That being said, the Doberman won the group. The handler said to himself, “But was that the best Doberman you’ve ever seen?” Probably not. Is this the way it should have gone?? Bullmastiffs seem to need to work harder for their recognition in the group.

This does not mean to say that an owner-handler cannot compete and win with a quality Bullmastiff. Statistically, a good dog will win more than a bad dog. Another handler once speculated that the better dog will win 41% of the time, 40% of the time will be politics/status/advertising, and the remaining 19% will win because of sheer craziness. With the use of professional handlers and advertising, it becomes increasingly more difficult for the owner-handler to win breeds and group placements (and even in the classes) in the Bullmastiff ring. Of course if you are professionally handled, have weekly advertising in all the trade magazines and you’re a quality dog, a Bullmastiff can compete with the best of them. These dogs tend to have an edge. But dogs who are number one all systems should present the best of both, a group and a breed level. But not always so.

The more moderate, flashy Bullmastiff with flying side gait would probably fare better in the group, but a specialist or breeder judge might favor a typier dog. The group dogs needs the “look of eagles” to compete with the Dobermans and the like ... he needs to be truly special to stand out against the more stylish working breeds. Ideally we would want him to have impeccable type. Conversely, is the showy Bullmastiff that lacks type occasionally rewarded in the group ring? And I don’t just mean head type. Is the longer dog favored as he is more likely to have a flashier side gait? A nearly square, moderately angled dog can move correctly for a Bullmastiff, but an all-round judge might favor the flashier mover. Judges need to be educated on true Bullmastiff type and movement.

I’d like to finish this column mentioning that the top-winning Bullmastiff dog and bitch all time were both owner-handled. Ch. Bandog’s Crawdaddy Gumbo, owned and handled by Wayne Boyd, co-bred by me (Sanders and Stroup) and Ch. Ladybug’s Lady Caitlin, owned and handled by Denise Borton (bred by Gerry Roach) are two Bullmastiffs not soon forgotten if seen in the breed, group or best in show ring.

HANDLING YOUR BULLMASTIFF

Showing molossers (bullmastiffs) presents a challenge primarily I think, due to their size. They require much more space for transportation, therefore crates are heavier and more awkward to load and adequately sized vehicles are paramount. Exercising can be more difficult as x-pens alone may not be secure enough and proper grooming and bathing can be complicated. One must always be aware of bodily language and traits that will warn a owner of impending dominance or dislike for another dog. These attitudes, while not necessarily faulty, will keep a handler occupied and ever vigilant for any potential incidents.

Handling a bullmastiff requires an equal combination of strong sturdy grip coupled with the ability to present the dog with a certain degree of flair and finesse, never crossing the line into outright flamboyance. I believe it to be important to show the dog in a way that illustrates the unique purpose of the breed. A bullmastiff flying around the ring at breakneck speed in a flying trot, while it may look impressive, is contrary to the very objectives and usage for which the breed was developed. So it is essential that the bullmastiff be moved at a speed that befits their original function and the standard. On the other hand a judge can hardly be expected to be interested in the dog if it moves in a plodding fashion and returns to him on the down and back with its head hanging low, appearing disinterested and dejected. It is important to know and understand the historical background and be aware of the original intent of the breed. This applies to both handler and judge so that a positive appraisal can be made from a correct presentation. It is essential to keep those big heavy heads up and looking straight at the judge. He/she should not have to raise the head to examine the proportions and bite. With the head well up there is more of an appearance of dignity and splendor and the overall impression of strength and power. Carriage while on the move is of equal importance. Getting those great heads up in a proud and noble manner while trotting will go far in presenting an eye catching picture. I tend to stack my bullmastiffs on a bit of an angle. The head and fore chest are important attributes and I think facing that area of the dog ever so slightly into the ring helps a judge to see these components a bit better especially when he is walking down the line to look each one over. All in all, I think less is more when exhibiting a giant breed.

Throwing bait constantly, kneeling unnecessarily for effect, racing around the ring, allowing the dog to move far out at the end of the leash (dangerous) and various other ploys really don't seem to have a positive place in the proper exhibition of a bullmastiff. Correct form and function with just the right dash of flair is a winning combination. For the most part regular bait (ie liver, rollover, chicken) works well, although I remember one Mastiff that liked to be baited with doughnuts. I think, as with any other breed, you discover an article that attracts the dog and use it judiciously. I don't care much for squeaky toys with these big heavy breeds. It just seems inappropriate to use one on such a big massive animal but one does what works to get and retain interest. Remember to use this article sparingly, as to continue prolonged and unnecessary usage is distracting and unfair to other exhibitors who are also attempting to display their dogs for the judge.

Courtesy in and out of the ring is essential. And at this point I want to add that I really detest bait bags. And I'll also tell you that once upon a time, many years ago, when I was first starting into the conformation ring, I also thought that I should have one. But I was quickly taught otherwise. These bags scream newbie and they are distracting, as they flop when you run. And sometimes they can be hard to get into at that precise moment that you require your bait. A pocket in your jacket, skirt, or slacks is easier and the bait is more readily accessible. The overall look, minus that awful bag, should be one of confidence and poise.

I often find that after properly stacking, simply holding the head well up with the chain collar firmly fitting around the throat and behind the ears, collecting any loose skin and smoothing the throat latch to demonstrate a thick muscular neck topped with a massive square head, is thoroughly appealing to the viewer. Excessive and exaggerated use of bait just promotes and speeds drooling and unnecessary fumbling and fidgeting about the head is a distraction to the regal bearing that should be evident in a good bullmastiff specimen. Drooling is certainly an issue but above all else I am really offended seeing the drool towel hanging down the back side of the handler as the dog is gaited around the ring. My method to deal with drooling beasts is to take two towels to ringside, one hand towel and one face cloth. As I am waiting to enter the ring and feeding my dog a bit to keep his interest, he will likely spit and drool. The hand towel is used here to wipe up the excess. By the time I am ready to enter the ring the hand towel will be well used and discarded at ringside. The face cloth is folded into a square and tucked into a pocket for easy access. Once in the ring it is clean and dry and ready to be used. Above all else be sure the total mouth is clean and saliva free before the judge examines the bite. A strong linked choke chain with a sturdy cloth lead tied to it would complete the essential equipment necessary for the ring. And do remember that the collar does not need to look like a towing chain, it only needs to be durable and strong. If you prefer, you can purchase the fancy leather leads with baubles and beads attached, but for the first time handler, these may be distracting and uncomfortable in the hand until you have perfected your handling techniques. Less is usually more when first starting out in the conformation ring. You will have plenty of things to be concerned about and your show lead shouldn't be one of them. It is possible that certain judges just are not bullmastiff lovers preferring the slicker, neater appearance of Dobermans, Siberians, etc. That is human nature just as certain folks like sports cars and others are attracted to a solid pickup truck. What is important is that the bullmastiff be correct in form and function as befitting their stately and interesting ancestry. Without doubt, some of the molossers can be daunting. They stand at near eye level with judges and there are too many instances in the ring where they are being handled ineptly or by persons who are not nearly strong enough to control them. I see this often and I am quite perturbed that anyone would think it amusing to send a child or an inexperienced handler into the ring with a beast of this magnitude. Little wonder that a judge might be intimidated when he/she knows that the dog is not under control. This is counterproductive to our quest of establishing that our breed is sound in mind and is a trustworthy and dependable canine citizen.

With a small dose of style and an addition of charisma, I believe the bullmastiff can compete fairly with their more graceful rivals. Showing a molosser, whether it be tall and massive, or low slung and loose jointed, requires a sound knowledge of the history and conformational qualities that set these breeds apart from others. Understanding structure and anatomy as it is applied to the bullmastiff is paramount for proper ring presentation and success. Please learn to exhibit well before setting foot in the conformation ring. As a bullmastiff exhibitor, you are acting as the representative not only for your own dog but for the breed in general. Your demeanor, conduct, and proper presentation illustrates your desire and willingness to be an ambassador for our magnificent breed. As you stand at ringside waiting for your class time, your entire focus should be on your dog, maintaining his attention and avoiding contact both bodily and eye with the others who are milling about, also awaiting their turn. Always remember that on the end of your lead is a brawny, powerful animal and while you might feel confident that your dog will avoid altercations, there can always be a belligerent dog in the group and a second of inattentiveness can result in a serious skirmish. You are holding a guard dog, and to attempt to instill the lesser traits of servility and meekness is an injustice to the breed and its' heritage. That being said, the bullmastiff must be taught to conduct himself in a public venue with reliability and the intelligence of a sound protector. When you enter the ring, the task at hand should be to exhibit your dog well, be proud of your ability to do so, and to confidently face this challenge head on with dignity, grace and decorum.

The Versatile Bullmastiff

SHOWING YOUR DOG IN CONFORMATION AND SO MUCH MORE

by Cindy Platt

I remember twenty-five years ago when I aspired to get a CD on my first showdog. Her name was "Peaches" and she had easily earned her championship and we wanted something else fun to do. Unfortunately, training methods back then were force based and well, you just were not going to get this dog to do anything by force. I quit rather than make her miserable. At that time a CD just seemed so hard to achieve, an impossibility, at least for us. I was so impressed with anyone who could earn a CD with any dog, let alone a bullmastiff! Everything in obedience just seemed so complicated and hard. I felt completely ignorant of how to train a dog and pretty inadequate. Little did I know that I indeed did have what it took to obtain any title with Peaches, I just didn't know it. The key to success in any ring is the RELATIONSHIP you have with your dog. Peach and I had love, trust and mutual respect and we enjoyed being with each other. I just didn't know how to take that and replace the force aspect of training. But I didn't stop thinking about it.

I will always love showing a bullmastiff in conformation. Taking a happy, beautiful dog into the ring who you are confident will show well is really FUN. But let's face it, it's a fickle world. If you have a nice dog with minimal faults you can earn your championship, but then what? If you are really lucky you might have a nice special for a time, but that also fades and then what? Perhaps you have a dog who is just not suited to conformation for whatever reason and then what? The career of a show dog is short, but there are lots of other things you can do.

"The silly myth that a conformation dog cannot be taught obedience because they might sit in the showing is just plain ignorant."

Obedience today gets a bad wrap. I myself wish some aspects of AKC competitive obedience would change. However, the exercises in the novice portion of AKC obedience (to earn the Companion Dog Title) are the foundation of all other performance areas. A dog is taught to walk on a loose leash near our side (heeling). This is the foundation for gaiting at a conformation show. They are also taught to stand for examination, which also crosses over to conformation.

Dogs are expected to come when called, the recall. This exercise is probably the most important of all to the health and safety of our dogs, but also imperative in agility. Training methods have evolved to not be so force based. However, I have found that with a bullmastiff you need a well-timed and fair dose of force on occasion to get your point across. Purely positive training leaves gaps where a bullmastiff will take advantage of you. There is NEVER a place for cruelty in training. It is important you find a trainer who can balance positive methods with a fair correction when needed. If you are involved in obedience and are training towards a CD, you my friend will have what it takes to successfully cross over to all other performance areas.

The silly myth that a conformation dog cannot be taught obedience because they might sit in the showing is just plain ignorant. We don't give our dogs enough credit. They know the difference in collars, leads, the way we carry ourselves, the way the rings look and even the way we are dressed. I would like to think that my dogs recognize a show lead, collar up under the ears, bait in my pocket, a skirt, and the way I hold my arm and body position to tell them LOUD AND CLEAR we are in the conformation ring. In that ring we stand, we stay, we trot and don't gallop, we look cute and put our ears up for lots of treats, we let the judge touch us and look at our mouths. In the obedience ring we stay closer to mom, we have a thicker choke collar on, we sit, we stay, we come, we don't get treats until we are done. In the agility ring mom wears her running clothes, there is turf under my paws, I wear a buckle collar, there are no treats until the end and I run free. In the tracking field I wear a harness and I move ahead of mom to find something she cannot. I am confident that our dogs are very capable of understanding the differences easily. And so what if, horror of horrors, your conformation dog actually SITS in the showing? Simply tell them to stand and stay. If the judge loves your dog, they will overlook it. When working with my dogs I do train multiple areas in one session. I try to make each area very distinct to the dogs. I switch collars and leads. I am very mindful of the way I carry myself. All of these convey messages to our dogs. They get it. When I start tiny puppies I train them to stand, gait, walk on a loose leash, jump tiny jumps, wear a harness and find treats in the grass all in a fun and happy way. You don't have to train for only one thing at a time, you CAN do it all at once.

One of the problems I have run into with every one of my dogs is that in the conformation ring they can sometimes get confused and stay too close to heel position and look up at me while gaiting. This throws their movement off. Also in the obedience ring I have had dogs move out slightly ahead of me as in the conformation ring. This is forging. Be assured that this is a normal part of the learning curve for both of you. How I fix this is to go back and forth repeatedly in one session between obedience heeling and conformation gaiting, being very mindful of keeping each exercise separate and distinct. I change collars and leads. In conformation gaiting I hold my left arm in front of me which the dog can easily see, in obedience my left arm is carried close to my body with my hand on my abdomen. I lean my upper body slightly forward to tell them they are to TROT. A not so subtle clue to move out. In training I throw bait ahead of me using my right hand to get them to look forward and to move out ahead of me. I do not throw bait in the showing, but if my dogs see my right hand move forward in a throwing motion that is enough to get the exact same effect. My command is "go show". Eventually they put it all together and understand to move out ahead of me, look ahead and trot. In obedience, to correct forging I do not yank them back ever, but I do many turns and when the dog gets into proper heel position I praise that. Pretty soon they start experimenting with the right zone they should place themselves in to get that praise. Eventually the combination of collar, lead, my position and my cues tells them this is heeling and not gaiting. My command is "heel". I think it is fun to go back and forth. I make a game of it and the dogs really seem to be proud of themselves when the light-bulb goes off and they figure out what you are asking.

Obedience is the most rigid of the training areas and the one we have to work the most on to make it fun. Conformation is really easy for most dogs and should be very motivating to them because we can use food in the ring. Agility is insanely fun for most bullmastiffs, sometimes to the detriment of the other areas. I personally love agility more than any other dog sport and therefore so do my dogs!

"I try to make each area very distinct to the dogs. I switch collars and leads. I am very mindful of the way I carry myself. All of these convey messages to our dogs. They get it."

I have been blessed with many multiple titled bullmastiffs. In the beginning the titles were the goal, but as the years have passed the titles have become just a nice bonus. The goal has been to enjoy everything I do with my dogs and to be happy with whatever effort they give me. Dogs are not robots, they have bad days just like we do. Bullmastiffs are not long lived. Working with so many dogs I have dearly loved and lost has taught me the valuable lesson to enjoy the journey, to appreciate my dogs and to be grateful to them. I share my heart currently with Miss Genie. (GCH. CH. MELKEV'S MY DREAM OF GENIE, TD, VCD-2, CDX, RA, AXP, AJP, WDV3, WDA3, WDO2, WDT1) She is three years old and by the age of one year she had seven AKC titles! She is titled in conformation, agility, tracking, rally and obedience. This year she has risen to the top in agility and will competing at the AKC Agility Invitational in Orlando, Florida representing our breed. Many times I showed Genie in obedience and ran to the conformation ring. I changed her lead and collar and she knew her job. She came to me as this smart little eight week puppy who loved everything. Very early I saw her potential and I was not going to let that go to waste. I was not sure she'd be large enough to compete in the breed ring, but in agility her petite size would be a great advantage. Her size didn't seem to limit her after all as she easily earned her GCH and several ABA Awards of Merits. But to me looks are the superficial part, it is her heart, brains and athletic ability I enjoy most. I have to admit I love it when people compliment her on her beauty as we enter the agility ring, my ego loves having a pretty dog who can work! But if she were ugly, I'd love her and be just as proud of her!

"The key to all of this is the relationship you have with your bullmastiff. Spend time playing with them, taking walks, hanging out and cuddling with them. Enjoy them."

The key to all of this is the relationship you have with your bullmastiff. Spend time playing with them, taking walks, hanging out and cuddling with them. Enjoy them. Just train in short fun sessions. When I made this the most important part of my training things fell into place. A bullmastiff who loves you and loves being with you will do anything. As tiny puppies I reward attitude. I work on getting them pumped with my voice and facial expressions first and food second. If you are frustrated or in a bad mood don't train and for heaven's sake don't take it out on your dog. A bullmastiff who has a wagging tail and is looking eagerly at my face to see what we can do next just melts my heart. They WANT to work for us and do things with us. I think sometimes we forget that with this breed. I encourage all of you to at least once cross over into some other area of dog performance. You will be surprised at just how much satisfaction you will get and you will see that it will make the other areas even better. If you have any questions or just need some support don't hesitate to contact me.

RULES OF THE SPORT

A Survival Guide to the National Specialty - Compiled and Offered by a Veteran Bitch

WELCOME!

Welcome to the American Bullmastiff Association National, newbies, frequent showers, and veterans of the ring, alike! This is the one time a year when we all come together in celebration of our breed and the sport of purebred dogs. Here we participate in conformation events, performance arenas, even parades, all focused upon bullmastiffs and those of us who fancy them. Make this the experience of a lifetime for yourselves and everyone with whom you come in contact during these special days. This week is part of a long and hallowed tradition, as we all know. We are all involved and it can be unforgettable. Every day, during each of the events, be mindful that the people next to you might be attending their first National or you could be sitting beside some of the individuals whose names are synonymous with bullmastiff history in this country or even in the world. This is an unparalleled opportunity for all in attendance, to learn, to teach, and to exchange advice and information, to become part of a community of individuals involved in the breed today and instrumental in its future. We all have our contributions to make, whether we want to learn about health issues, celebrate rescue work, show our newest generation of dogs, or be ringside to see breed history made. Please allow me to share some invaluable advice given to me by my mentor many years ago, when we flew across the country years ago to experience our first ABA National Specialty: -Find a way to be involved immediately, even if this is your first show and also if it is your last. Whether you volunteer to help with a specific event, such as the Art Auction or the Top 25, decide to lend your hands to keeping the facility clean, or just pitch in to arrange chairs for the club's Annual Meeting, you will begin to feel a part of the excitement, a member of the club and that is a priceless part of the National experience. There will be many people grateful for your offer and needing your help, so step right up. To that end, consider joining the ABA and volunteering for one of the many valuable standing committees, whether your passion is tracking or rescue. In that way, your involvement will continue all year and your next National will be even more something in which you have invested talent and time.

SAY HELLO!

Introduce yourself to your fellow fanciers, to anyone you have been wanting to meet and to those with whom you find yourself in proximity. Please remember that this should be accomplished not when the person is going into or coming out of the ring or involved in some activity, but when you can actually meet the people and enjoy their company. hospital-ity room is a great place to unwind, and you can find yourself having a snack with a steward of the breed, a renowned breeder, or a judge who has won the respect of many. As well, you can use the time to meet the new folks, the ones standing by the door, probably wondering who everyone is and hoping for a friendly face. Reach out and make connections that can last a lifetime. Here, at the National, you can begin to build your bullmastiff community, those to whom you will turn in times of celebration or crisis, the ones who will become what many of us recognize as our bullmastiff families.

MIND YOUR MANNERS!

As a spectator at the events, please remember that good manners go a long distance toward making crowded events enjoyable for all. I cannot stress this simple point enough. It behooves us all to remember the rules we were taught at our parents' knees and in our first social interactions. This is a time to appreciate and participate in the different events, spend time with people, and, of course, observe many bullmastiffs. Go everywhere, interact with everyone, participate in everything, but with the proviso that you will be a good citizen and your dogs will, too. Please remember that the dog or dogs you might consider less than perfect (and there are no perfect dogs) or the persons you find objectionable could be someone's heart dogs or another's friends and mentors. Practice the tried and true Golden Rule. We are all entitled to our opinions about people and dogs, of course, but they are not to be broadcast loudly or bandied about when they can be overheard and cause hurt. Put yourselves in another's position when tempted to make unkind comments about a dog, a handler, or a judge. I will note too, that there will possibly be times when you are asked about dogs and people in the breed. That is a function of dog showing, as we all know, but be apprised that your input will be heeded and valued more if you offer it objectively and politely and only in hearing of those who ask. Please do yourselves and others a real service and do not sink to idle gossip or negative innuendo just in order to vent, and you will save yourself and others untold unpleasantness.

DOGS COME FIRST!

As someone attending with dogs, whether you have only one in your room, or arrive with a whole string, be attentive to the animals in your care always and extra vigilant in the close confines of hotel areas or show rings. Keep control of your dogs when exercising and walking, avoiding the tendency to chat and loiter, when your dogs' needs should come first, and be aware and wary while competing, no matter what others are doing. Your dogs may be well behaved and carefully attended, but the same might not be true of all of the dogs on the property. Our animals depend on us to keep them safe. Certainly there will be unruly puppies experiencing their first National and seasoned veterans participating for the last time, but they are all bullmastiffs and can be assertive, inquisitive, protective, and so many other adjectives that make us value them all the more. Keep your dogs to yourself and be sure they comport themselves in a manner that brings you credit in and out of the rings, and also in the hotel rooms. Do not approach or handle someone else's dogs unless you are invited or obtain permission. You will need to keep the dogs' crates clean, to keep any areas where they are living covered and protected, and to be focused upon their comfort, but also on taking care of the facility. So many venues are now turning down dogs and dog shows, as many of us involved in event planning know, and this can be traced, at least in part, to the ways we allow our dogs to behave and to live during their stays in such locations. Please also remember your housekeeping staff. Many of these people love the dogs and go to great lengths to be flexible and useful when we need rooms to be cleaned, extra supplies available, and additional services provided.

SMILE!

As an exhibitor, I would ask that everyone please remember that this is a showcase event, an annual celebration of the breed for all who love the bullmastiff. This is our breed's National. You and your bullmastiffs should be shown in the best possible light at all times, whether you are merely taking a morning walk or when you are in the ring, competing for Best of Breed. Care should be taken with training, grooming and presentation. In the ring, during any given event, there will certainly be people new at this, seasoned showers, and professionals, as well. Whichever category best describes you, you can be an example to some and a reminder to others, when it comes to the National experience. Please be sure that your dogs are groomed impeccably and properly trained, that you have complete control of them at all times, and that you are mentally and physically able to accept the challenge of showing them to the judges chosen by the membership of the ABA for this National. Be prepared for whatever might be asked of you and your bullmastiffs, be polite and aware of other exhibitors and dogs around you, whether next in line or across the ring, and respectful of the judges' instructions and decisions, however they choose to judge their entries. Of course, there will be winners and losers and the odds are, if you do this for any length of times, that you will find yourself in both situations, as well as somewhere in between. Take your ribbons and trophies humbly and gratefully, celebrating your wins, if you are lucky enough to get any.

Whether or not you do win, be thankful to those judging, congratulatory to those other competitors winning, and mannerly to other competitors. Being a good sport is easier as a winner, as most of us learn, but there is something to be said for losing gratefully and it is a crucial part of the sport of purebred dogs. Leave the ring and celebrate or lick your wounds, but never at the expense of other handlers or dogs.

GOOD LUCK!

I wish all ABA National attendees, whether this one is your first or your fiftieth, the thrill that fanciers of our breed all share watching these dogs fly around an agility course, retrieve over jumps in obedience, or own the conformation ring. Around us, as we come together are gathered the shades of bullmastiffs and fanciers past, for this is their celebration, too. Remember as well that you are preparing the way for those who will be enjoying our ABA National in the future, taking your part in our breed's history by your attendance and participation. This is our ABA National, unique every year in so many ways, but the same in its purpose of celebration. This is our occasion to come together with our bullmastiffs and I hope that these few guidelines will stand you in good stead, as they have for me, over the years. Safe travels, good luck, and great times, bullmastiff lovers.
