MBISS GCH NV's More Than A Crush

Crush has been a dream come true. As his breeders/owners, from early on we were excited & hopeful for his future in the show ring. He finished quickly with all majors & has been awarded multiple BIS in Sweepstakes, 2016 & 2017 National Specialty AOM, & 2019 Westminster BOB winner!

Crush is the result of a line breeding of our beloved "Gunny," GCHB NV's Bringing In The Big Guns, so he has always held a very special place in our hearts. He inherited his loving gentle soul & willingness to please.

Crush sits nicely in the breed standard in height & weight, a square dog with correct balanced angles & effortless movement. He is OFA Excellent, Normal Elbows, & Echocardiogram Clear.

A very special thank you to Miss Ronie Whittall for her expert handling of Crush to his BOB win! She is a talented young lady with a bright future. To long-time, well respected breeder judge Mrs. Virginia Rowland for choosing our Crush for your National Specialty winner, we will be forever grateful for this memory, we will cherish it for a lifetime.

Certainly not least, thank you to our friends & fellow exhibitors for your support in & out of the ring. We appreciate your congratulatory words & messages.

NEW - MULTIPLE PERFORMANCE TITLES - "AWEN"

Ch. Dredger's Sacred Ground, CD, RE, CA, BCAT (CHIC # 108449)

(Ch. High Point's Zoolander x Midnight Lunar Eclipse at StoneBull)

For a dog that as a puppy, I was convinced was too willful to do much of anything beyond the breed ring, "Awen" has certainly proved me wrong, racking up multiple obedience, rally and coursing performance titles, besides her Championship. In addition to producing the 2018 #5 Bullmastiff (as of 12/31/18) – GCh. StoneBull's We Own the Night of DCP, aka "Pearson", owned by Marilyn Flanders and Kent & Robin MacFarlane, she has found her true calling in life – lure coursing! Awen will be taking a motherhood break again in 2019 (this time she was bred to Ch. Leatherneck's Red Storm Rising, with puppies expected at the end of January – thank you Melinda!!), and then will be back out later in the year, chasing a DCAT coursing title and perhaps even agility....following in the pawprints of her super-star grandmother "Neala" – PACH Bulla's Stones Throw Away Eh, RE, MXP4, MJP4, MFP, CGC. Look for Stormy/Awen puppies out in 2019 as well!

NEW CHAMPION - "Poogie"

Ch. Bulla's The Mighty Quinn, CD (CHIC #116340)

(Ch. Banstock@Oakridge Rio Grande, CDX, RE x GCh. StoneBull's Lucretia McNight, OAP, NJP, NFP, RN)

"Poogie" was expertly and lovingly piloted to his championship by co-owners Kent MacFarlane and Robin MacFarlane, with help from our friend Ryan Blanker of Northern Lights Siberians, in very limited showing. Poogie is a sound, substantial boy with a short back, solid topline, gorgeous fluid movement, strong head, friendly outgoing personality and a solid work ethic. He will be finishing his Grand Championship in 2019, and trialing for his CDX title.

NEW CHAMPION - "SILVER"

Ch. StoneBull's Midnight Rider

(Ch. Banstock Bruno of the Northeast x Ch. Dredger's Sacred Ground, CD, RE, CA, BCAT)

"Silver" finished her championship with co-breeder/owner Robin MacFarlane, in the fall of 2018, in very limited showing. She is a top of the standard girl with a solid topline, balanced structure with tremendous reach and drive, and a good-natured, gentle personality. She will be finishing her Grand Championship in 2019, and trialing in Rally Obedience.

2018 ABA National Specialty Judge's Critiques

ABA NATIONAL CONFORMATION JUDGING CRITIQUE Virginia Rowland, Blackslate Bullmastiffs

It was a great honor for me to be elected by the membership to judge the 2018 National. It was 18 years since I had judged an ABA National and an exciting opportunity for me as a long-time breeder to evaluate a breed I have loved for so long.

In general, I would say the quality was very good. Great temperaments and wonderful to see so many talented owner handlers. I did notice in some of the younger males bad feet and lack of bone, but these are conditions that may improve with age. I was surprised to see quite a few slightly wry bites. Breeders need to pay attention to mouths. The standard isn't very specific about what slightly undershot means, but clearly wry mouths aren't defined as acceptable.

I was very disappointed that so few brindle Bullmastiffs were shown. This color/pattern is VERY important. My ambition has always been to own a brindle bitch that could win the ABA National. Not sure a brindle Bullmastiff bitch will ever get this honor and that is depressing. I know from my own experience that it is discouraging to show brindles to non-breeder judges as they usually are not rewarded, but I really hope that breeders will continue to breed brindles and to show them. I truly feel that the Judges Education Committee should focus on educating judges about how to judge brindles. I understand that it can be harder to see expression on a brindle head and the brindle pattern can sometimes create an optical illusion that might make it harder to evaluate proportions (but not impossible).

My Best of Breed dog was such a wonderful representative of the breed. Beautiful bone, correct proportions - nearly square, not overly angulated; nice feet. Correct tail set - and carriage when moved. He has a handsome square head, outstanding bite, wide underjaw, correct amount of wrinkle, beautiful expression. Very nice moving dog that didn't let down at all during the long period of judging. I was so nice to learn that he was handled by a junior handler who had only known the dog for a couple of days. She did an amazing job and was so talented that her handling helped demonstrate what an exceptional dog she was exhibiting.

Best of Opposite was a very nice fawn female, correct body proportions, bone, topline, and tail set. She had a pretty head with nice expression and bite. Nicely handled by her breeder owner.

Winners Dog and Best of Winners was a very nice young dog with correct bone for his age, beautiful head/expression, very nice bite and movement. It will be interesting to see how he matures.

Reserve Winners Dog was a very handsome brindle with outstanding bone and substance, beautiful head and outline. His exuberant personality made it harder to evaluate him, but he truly is a very deserving dog, didn't have as nice a bite as the winner.

Winners Bitch was a beautiful fawn with such a pretty head and expression, a beautiful correct outline. A little more than slightly undershot but otherwise very hard to fault.

Reserve Winners Bitch was another nice fawn female with correct proportions, nice head and expression, nice mover.

I really love judging juniors. It's a shame we don't get a large entry. That being said, the open senior class had three amazingly talented entrants and it was an excruciating decision as all of them are so deserving. I wish I could have given them all a blue ribbon.

Thank you very much to my stewards and the show committee who made my experience so special.

ABA NATIONAL FUTURITY JUDGING CRITIQUE Julie Ahrens, Essex Bullmastiffs

What an honor judging the 2018 Futurity event. I want to thank the ABA for allowing me the joy and privilege to see these young Bullmastiffs enter the ring.

Overall, I was pleased with the dogs' quality, and all displayed even and pleasant temperaments. None were fearful, and all were well behaved and ring ready. My hat's off to the people responsible for that. Even with a small entry, all colors were well represented.

Bites were quite varied, but I saw many very good bites and none that were wry. Also, all of the dogs willingly had their bites shown, again thanks to good training.

My choice for the Best Bitch in Futurity was a well-balanced fawn in the 12 - 15 month class. She had strong type, a lovely arched neck, and all the characteristics as described in our standard were well represented. But for me, it was her beautiful fluid yet strong movement, probably the best in the entry in my opinion.

My choice for the Best Dog in Futurity was a young clear-coated fawn dog from the 9 - 12 month class. He too was well-balanced and his "pieces" fit and worked well together, especially notable for a dog his age. He met all the standard traits. He also received very high marks for his movement, with even reach to drive, and his top line remained level throughout judging.

Credit must go to the breeders of the 2018 Futurity entry. The puppies were a sign of good things to come for the Bullmastiff breed. I was pleased but not surprised to see Futurity's winners standing with the winners at the end of the Best of Breed event.

ABA NATIONAL SWEEPSTAKES JUDGING CRITIQUE Christine Rasmussen, ExLibris Bullmastiffs

I'd like to begin by expressing my sincere gratitude to the American Bullmastiff Association for the honor of judging Sweepstakes at the 2018 National Specialty. It was a privilege to share the ring with so many lovely dogs. I so thoroughly enjoyed this assignment that by the end of judging, my face hurt from smiling!

I was very pleased with the quality of puppies exhibited. The majority had the solid, confident temperaments that are essential to our breed. The depth of quality made some of the placements very difficult, which is a struggle every breeder judge hopes for during an assignment. I was happy by the number of puppies with lovely heads and keen, alert expressions, but I would caution breeders to pay close attention to eye color. I saw a number of puppies with eyes that were closer to light brown/hazel than the dark brown called for by the standard. One more issue to keep an eye on is mouths. This is something we hear judges say again and again and I am sad to say it's an area that still needs improvement. I am not terribly critical of even a very undershot bite, but I cannot forgive a very narrow underjaw, spoon jaw, or wry bite, and I saw all three of these.

Most puppies were well-constructed; just a few suffered from age-related topline issues – to be expected. When I struggled to make placements, I moved the classes again (the exhibitors got their exercise!). I was happy that many of the puppies had the free, smooth, and powerful movement that is correct for the bullmastiff.

My Best in Sweepstakes (and Best Junior) was a lovely dog with a proper head, good size, and powerful movement. He appeared to own the ground he stood on, even at his relatively young age. I think he has a promising show career ahead of him. Best of Opposite Sex to Best Junior Puppy was a nice, good-sized bitch with a pretty head, a wide underjaw, and correct angulation front and rear. My Best Puppy, a very young dog from the 6-9 month class, has some maturing to do, of course, but is well-put together, with a pretty head and expression, a show-stealing attitude and clean, ground-covering movement I couldn't deny. Best of Opposite Sex to Best Puppy was a lovely girl with nice substance, good construction, correct head type, and plenty of exuberance for the ring!

The veterans were a real treat and took my breath away! They always do when I'm sitting ringside, but there is a special magic in sharing the ring with these wonderful dogs. The veterans proved their mettle with lovely bone, movement, heads, and construction. Again and again in my notes I indicated balance, bone, angulation, and expression. These dogs were all a joy to judge and seeing them light up the ring with effortless movement was a delight.

My Best Veteran in Sweepstakes was a stunning bitch with proper size, beautiful structure, a gorgeous black mask, and correct angulation front and rear. She and my Best of Opposite Veteran earned their placements in some very stiff competition. My Best of Opposite was a dog with tremendous bone, beautiful angulation front and rear, a lovely, correct expression, and a fireball attitude I love to see, especially in a veteran.

Again, thank you for the honor of this assignment and to all who exhibited. I will forever treasure the memory. Special thanks, too, go to all who worked so hard to put on the Specialty – it was well-organized and beautifully run.

Junior Handler Spotlight

Ronie Whittall

By far my most amazing accomplishment as a Junior Handler is winning Best of Breed at our 2018 ABA National Specialty with an equally amazing dog, Crush (GCH NV's More Than a Crush). When Vickie Platt first approached me (the day before judging) about showing Crushie, I was excited (as always). Entering the breed ring as a junior is always fun and exciting but entering the ABA National Specialty breed ring is a whole other level of experience. When you come in, you are literally "running with the big dogs;" there are so many impressive dogs and handlers all working towards one goal: Best of Breed.

When we made the first cut from our group, I was so excited I slipped on dog slobber on my way to the center of the ring. Once Crush and I also made it through the second cut, I knew I had a shot. I was now one of the "big dogs." I wasn't just the "kid" in the ring; I was competition. As the groups became smaller, as a team, our determination grew. By the final cut, we were a well-oiled machine, a team, handler and dog. I had gotten our drill down. Judge not looking? Relax, but not too much, in case she turns around. All of our hard work as a team had paid off when she, iconic breeder judge, Virginia Rowland, pulled us first, and we were awarded Best of Breed. I could not believe it, a Junior Handler, a fifteen-year-old, was chosen. Crush and I won! Many people work for years to compete at this specialty and to walk away with anything is already a win and we won. I am the first Junior Handler to win an ABA National Specialty, and it was my greatest honor to be part of such an amazing lineup of dogs.

I have had a very successful Junior Handler career and this win is the cherry on top to another amazing year. I have won many Best Juniors and Reserve Best Juniors along with a Best of Breed at Woofstock with Branson, a Belgian Tervuren. I also won Best of Breed in Orlando at the AKC National Championship (presented by Royal Canin) with Titus (Silverback's Wind of Fate) under breeder judge Vicki Allenbrand. Currently I want to focus on becoming familiar with other breeds and temperaments. New dogs are new experiences, new challenges, and new lessons. In the future I would like to go to more shows and just compete even more in the sport I love so much. I also want to train and show a puppy to a special. I already started with our puppy, Taylor (Ridgetop & Marconians' Midsummer Night's Dream). She has already won a Puppy Group One at the Golden Gate Kennel Club dog show, held at the Cow Palace in San Francisco. I would also love to share my knowledge and techniques with others competing in this sport.

In conclusion, I would like to thank everybody who has taken part in my Junior Handler journey and who has helped me along the way. I would like to specifically thank my mom, Olga Contant, for helping, driving and teaching me everything I know. I couldn't be where I am now without you. I would also like to thank all of the owners and handlers for trusting me with their amazing dogs. Lastly, thank you to all of the judges who have recognized me as a handler and to the amazing dogs I have handled. Thank you all so much!

AKC DELEGATE REPORT

At the Board's request, I attended the first AKC Education Summit in Newark, NJ, as your ABA representative. The following is a summary of this interesting, informative and useful daylong event.

There were eight presentations by AKC Staff. If any topic proves interesting to you, you can view a video of the each presentation on the AKC website at <https://www.akc.org/public-education/education-summit/>.

Evolution of Dog Shows and Events

Doug Ljungren, AKC Executive Vice President of Sports and Events, reviewed the evolution of dog sports, generational observations, an overview of dog sports participation, perceptual and real barriers to participation, and some potential actions to get more people and more dogs involved in all of our sports.

Dogs continue to be the #1 pet in America with 48% of households having at least one dog – a total of almost 90 million dogs. Our challenge is recruiting younger owners into the world of AKC sports. While baby boomers account for about 36% of dog owners, they make up 50% of the participants in Conformation events. The largest dog-owning segment, Millennials at 38%, make up the smallest participation segment at just 15% in Conformation. Their biggest reasons for not participating are economic and time constraints. However, it appears the benefit of fun and socialization can overcome those barriers.

In a study of why people participate in dog activities the strongest motivators were fun, building a stronger relationship with your dog, and social interaction. It is interesting that 44% of all AKC entries come from non-traditional sports – like Agility and CAT – which certainly deliver those motivators.

I imagine we can all affirm those emotional qualities are important and, in fact, are guiding principles in ABA events and our Facebook page, and certainly important to our thinking as we consider attracting new members.

Club Development

AKC established a new department to help All-Breed clubs, that is staffed by Glenn Lycan, AKC Director of Event Operations Support, and Guy Fisher, Manager of Club Development. This presentation reviewed the current state of All-Breed dog shows with an emphasis on how certain shows have achieved success. There was a panel of club members discussing effective strategies to improve events. If you are involved in an All-Breed club, I can recommend the video as an informative tool.

Juniors

discussed the importance of Juniors to the future of our sports. She presented some interesting ideas about bringing Juniors into clubs and their potential involvement. Her major message was for clubs to not only invite Juniors into the club, but give them responsibilities and activities that make them truly feel a part of the scene.

Her suggestions to consider at a National Specialty included educational events specifically for them, a hands-on handling class from pros, advice on how to dress for the sport, social media do's and don'ts, a Juniors FB page and a National Specialty pizza party for them.

Breed Preservation

Mark Dunn, AKC Executive Vice President, shared registration data contrasting the growth in numerous breeds against the decline in others – all while total litter and individual dog registrations have seen growth for the last five years. Today, 80% of all litters and registrations come from just 50 breeds. While 56 breeds have shown growth, 109 have declined – including Bullmastiffs.

There was a panel discussion focused on breed preservation. One interesting initiative is from the Otterhound club. As a very small breed (40-50 puppies per year in all of North America), they face a troublesome future from a genetic standpoint. The club petitioned AKC to allow them to create a semen bank with donations from breeders who no longer wish to breed, but possess frozen semen that might be useful to a breeder years from now. When I was on the AKC Board I led the effort for that approval. Now, frozen semen won't be lost to the breeding community when a breeder retires. Dr. Jerry Bell pointed out the importance of going back into long-ago dogs in pedigrees to help refresh the breed. AKC encourages low-entry breeds to consider the preservation of frozen semen.

Club Communications

Brandi Hunter, Vice President of Communications and Public Relations, discussed communication efforts particularly aimed at All-Breed clubs. There will be a follow-up presentation aimed more to Parent Clubs like the ABA at a later date.

Public Education

Ashley Jacot, Public Education Manager, discussed ways a club can get involved in the community. This presentation was specific to local All-Breed clubs.

The one section of the presentation relevant to the ABA was regarding social media and website. Based on her discussion, I would evaluate ABA's efforts as significantly more advanced, more relevant and more engaging than most.

The Language of the Dog

Relax

By Amanda Faulkner

We've all heard the term "old soul" used in reference to dogs who, from day one, just had a calm and almost wise way about them. These are dogs who are able to let the world more or less wash over them, worrying about very little. Then there are those dogs' polar opposites. The dogs who are hyper aware, sensitive to any stimulus. From an early age these dogs can be the explorers of the litter, but they can also be the ones who hang back because it's all too much and they're overwhelmed. Whether it manifests as manic bouncy dogs or as dogs scared of their own shadows, these pups have one thing in common: the inability to easily relax under stimulation.

The first step to helping these dogs be their best selves is to understand what is happening in their brains under stimulation. Often used neural pathways are coated with a substance called myelin. Myelin makes the electricity in the brain flow much faster down the pathway. So, if dogs are repeatedly having emotional reactions to stimulation, it becomes easier and easier for them to access that. Whether they are fearful and are getting chemical dumps of adrenaline and cortisol or the dopamine is overwhelming them with excitement, the result is the same; the more they feel it the easier it gets.

There are many methods to help fearful, excited, or anxious dogs. However, there is one often overlooked technique that can help them all; the trust roll. Many people have heard of the alpha roll and this is NOT to be confused with it. The alpha roll involves domination and intimidation. The trust roll is a calm, slow manipulation. An added side benefit is when done correctly this exercise strengthens the trust bond between you and your dog and there can never be too much trust. By itself this will not cure a dog's behavioral issue but repeatedly doing this technique will build a firm neural pathway towards relaxation after 45 days. The more often the dog performs this the more easily accessible the pathway.

So, what is it exactly? The end goal of the trust roll is to get the dog to, without commands, lie over on its side and completely relax. No tension, no stiff legs, no, submission, just in a relaxed state. You begin this exercise by being in a relaxed state yourself. If you've had a hard day at work or have just had an argument with your sister, choose another time to practice. If you begin to feel frustrated or impatient during the exercise it will push the dog into an even more unhealthy state of mind. You want to be as calm as you possibly can throughout the session. Also, minimize any distractions. Turn off your phone. Put away any other animals that live in the home. Make sure there is no human foot traffic due to come through. Some people find it helpful to keep a tv or radio on to minimize background noises. This can be very beneficial to dog and human alike provided it's a soothing show or song with no barking dogs or slamming sounds. Through the whole process, keep it in the forefront of your mind that you never ever push the dog too far. You can and will drive a dog to bite you if you aren't totally comfortable with each other and you push him or her. If your dog shows more than mild discomfort at any point, STOP. Try again tomorrow and the day after. Grow with the dog; don't force the dog.

So now that you have your environment under control you can begin with the exercise. I suggest that the dog have on a collar. If your dog does not regularly wear a collar around the house make sure you put it on 30 minutes or so ahead of time so the dog doesn't get a big dose of anticipation excitement right before you begin. Start by sitting on the floor and softly calling your dog over to you. If the dog is very hyper, just put your hand on the collar and wait for them to calm. Some people find talking softly to be helpful, others can't keep frustration or excitement out of their voices and do better in silence. Once the dog becomes relatively still begin to push gently down on the rear. If your dog has already laid down or sat, encourage him or her to stand and then push down. Do not tell the dog to sit. The goal is to manipulate the body into a sit without saying it. The goal is to let the dog trust you to manipulate his or her body without words. Doing this to your dog will make him or her excited or uncertain or somewhere in between. Guiding the dog to calm from that initial state that he or she naturally goes to will begin to build the pathway we are after. Once the dog is sitting, and this can take some time, begin slowly applying pressure to the shoulders to get him or her to lie down. Again, no commands here. Watch your body language that you don't loom over the dog. With some dogs you have to apply pressure with one hand and coax the legs down with another. This is usually the scariest part for the dog, so take your time. Again, if the dog is showing more than mild confusion or discomfort STOP. Don't release the dog if he or she is in a manic state; hold onto the collar and wait for calm, but do not push further. When you do release, use the release command word if you have one and slowly and calmly disengage. Keep the peace and calm for several minutes after.

If you are able to get the dog lying down you then begin to manipulate him or her softly onto his or her side by pushing, rocking or whatever way you can attain it. Usually it is easier if the dog's back is to you. Once you have the dog in this position, evaluate the body. Are the legs stiff? Does the dog keep pawing out or trying to pick the head up and look around? Concentrate on the muscles with the most activity. Remember we are looking for a calm totally relaxed dog. Usually a two-finger circular massage on the thigh or shoulder will often encourage that muscle to relax. Every dog is different. Play around with touch and movement. Some things will excite, others will soothe.

Again, at any point in the process you can call it off but try to get a little further each session. Repeatedly attaining real relaxation at the end will start to build the pathway in the brain. You get the dog to, under stimulation, relax. You can begin to up the game once you get good at it by slowly adding stimulation to the environment and asking him or her to remain calm.

This process, if taken slowly and respectfully, takes a dog at the beginning and triggers his or her problem state to a degree; how much varies from dog to dog. The wordless tactile stimulation sets the dog off. Guiding him or her to calm again and again through repetition and consistency gives the dog a faster way to get there. Doing it under distraction strengthens that ability to access that neural pathway, and eventually can give the brain an equal option to send the reaction to initial stimulus. This is a delicate maneuver and if you aren't comfortable with it, it should not be attempted. All exercises attempted are at your own risk.

Government Relations

Sheila Goffe, AKC Vice President of Government Relations, gave a brief overview of the work being done to protect the rights of dog owners.

Since "all politics are local" it is hard to equate those efforts to a membership spread across the entire country. However, Sheila did offer that there are now regional Government Relations field staff available to speak at club meetings. Might be an interesting thought for a specialty. In addition, there is a new flyer on "15 things you can do now to protect your rights" available from AKC.

AKC Canine Health Foundation

Diane Brown, AKC CHF CEO, gave an overview of the good work being done to advance the health of all dogs through scientific research and the distribution of health information to prevent, treat and cure canine disease. The CHF has a series of free webinars on a variety of health and behavior related topics available on AKCCHF.org.

For those who might consider attending, the 2019 AKC Canine Health Foundation National Parent Club Canine Health Conference is scheduled for August 9-11, 2019 in St. Louis, MO.

AKC Education Webinar Series

AKC has launched an interactive webinar series with topics geared to help clubs tackle some of the important issues facing them. These one-hour sessions are free and are archived for later review. Spotlight on ABA Lifetime Member Barbara Heck, Briart Bullmastiffs

Barb and her late husband, Art, bred, owned, and handled Bullmastiffs for many years and their mark on the breed is notable. They have given of their talent and time to the club in so many ways. Barb introduced her interview in this manner: "I have owned, loved, bred, or handled several different dog breeds over the years but I've always had a keen interest in the working breeds."

When did you first see/meet a Bullmastiff, and did you always want one someday?

We always had a big dog in the house. After the loss of our beloved pet Doberman we weren't sure we wanted another, so it was several years before we even thought about another big dog. I was ringside watching judging at one of our local shows and there happened to be a good-sized entry of Bullmastiffs that day. After judging was over some of the exhibitors were kind enough to chat with me and answer some of my questions. That's the day I met my first Bullmastiff and fell in love. As I recall one of the dogs I got to meet was a handsome brindle boy named AllStars Terry Thomas.

When and where did you get your first Bullmastiff?

We had to be the luckiest newcomers on earth because after what seemed like forever and hundreds of phone calls I spoke with a very nice lady by the name of Virginia Rowland (Blackslate). She just happened to know of a litter bred by Pam Kochuba (Shady Oak) and sired by Ch. Blackslate's Boston Brahmin, one of the top dogs in the country. We didn't waste any time making an appointment to see the litter and in August of 1988 we became the proud owners of a lovely red girl we named Fergie. Although she was first our family companion, she also went on to become group placing CH Briarts Fergie of Shady Oak.

When did you breed your first Bullmastiff litter?

Our first Bullmastiff litter was born in the fall of 1992. An earlier breeding resulted in the tragic death of our dear Fergie and her precious babies. It took quite a while to recover from that devastating loss and to tell the truth I wasn't sure I could. I still can't think about it without tears stinging my eyes. Thankfully our next attempt was a success and resulted in a beautiful litter of ten fat healthy puppies. The litter was sired by our CH Briarts Buck The Odds Of Shady Oak, a handsome fawn dog bred by Pam Kochuba. Momma was a dark red mahogany red bitch, Bullrun's Sweet Victory. Vickie was by far the best puppy momma I have ever owned and with a litter of ten that was worth its weight in gold. We did have a Beagle bitch that ran a close second, but that's another story.

How did you come up with the kennel prefix Briart?

Briart is simply a combination of my son's middle name (Brian) and my husband's first name (Art). For some reason some insist on pronouncing it Breart. It is pronounced Briart with an i.

Who have been your valued mentors over the years?

A bit of history here. My first mentors were a Doberman breeder and a Cocker Spaniel breeder. I have both of them to thank for my introduction into purebred dogs. They both became dear friends and many an hour was spent discussing and learning about breed standards, structure, movement, pedigrees, and the world of dog shows. Sadly, one is no longer with us, but I'm happy to say I still talk to my friend Pat (cockers) frequently.

My journey into the Bullmastiff world was certainly guided by Virginia Rowland and Pam Kochuba. I am forever grateful for their willingness to share their knowledge and friendship with me. There are so many more names I could add to my mentor list, people who are unselfishly willing to share what they have learned over many years of hard work

My journey into the Bullmastiff world was certainly guided by Virginia Rowland and Pam Kochuba. I am forever grateful for their willingness to share their knowledge and friendship with me. There are so many more names I could add to my mentor list, people who are unselfishly willing to share what they have learned over many years of hard work and dedication to the breed we all love. I'm blessed to call many of them my friends.

Have you had a favorite Bullmastiff over the years?

It's impossible to name just one.

What Bullmastiff do you consider the best you've bred?

Without a doubt that would have to be Sunny (Am/Can CH Briarts Solar Power, CGC, Gold ROM). I won't bore you with all of his achievements but aside from those he was a loving, stable, sound protector and family companion who always had our back, a big, red, handsome ambassador for the breed who made countless friends as we traveled the US and Canada showing our dogs. There were a couple of close seconds, but he remains my number one.

We know that you have had Bullmastiffs. What other breeds would you bring home if the right dog came along?

As my respiratory illness progressed it became increasingly clear I couldn't show our Bullmastiffs any more. My husband suggested we should consider a smaller breed so I could continue doing what he knew I loved, showing dogs. We decided Boston Terriers might be a good fit and they were. I lovingly refer to them as our little Bullmastiffs in a tuxedo. I'm convinced they thought they were Bullmastiffs. The Brussels Griffon is another breed I would like to have owned.

What are the best attributes of the Bullmastiff today?

I believe we are seeing more consistency of type. As the old saying goes if you don't have type you don't have a Bullmastiff. I also think temperaments have improved overall. We all want our dogs to be able to do what they were bred to do, but times have changed. Today's Bullmastiff has to adapt to a different set of circumstances. I'm also pleased to see a greater emphasis on health testing. Although it's not the total answer, it's certainly a step in the right direction.

Which Bullmastiff fancier from the past would you like to have lunch with today?

I'd love to have a meal and a chat with a gamekeeper and his family in their home. I'd love to know what the Bullmastiff was really like back in the day.

What challenges do you think today's Bullmastiff breeders are facing?

As in most breeds, health issues are still up there. As I mentioned above, we are working on it but there's a long way to go. Our breed has become more popular than ever and there is a bigger demand for puppies. Breeders now, as in the past, must face the challenge of any breed that becomes too popular. I love this breed, but the Bullmastiff is not for everyone and it's up to today's breeders to protect them just as we expect them to protect us.

What advice do you have to offer those breeding Bullmastiffs today?

I can offer them a few things that helped me along the way:

- Every time we bred a litter it was with a specific purpose in mind.
- Pedigrees are a valuable tool for a breeder.
- You can never know all there is to know. Be willing to keep on learning.

What is the accomplishment you are most proud of when it comes to Bullmastiffs?

That's a tough one but there is one that stands out because of when it happened. For reasons it would take far too long to explain we had a lovely homebred bitch that never made it to the show ring. Since she was nearly six years old, we weren't sure she ever would. After much discussion we decided she deserved to be shown and possibly finish her championship. I was no longer handling by then so she would be shown by a wonderful handler named Valerie McGraw. The week end of her first show my husband died suddenly and I got a phone call from Val to tell me that Sister won a major her first time out. Long story short, she finished just after her sixth birthday and shortly after went to her first National as a veteran, where she received an AOM. I am proud to have bred this beautiful bitch (CH Briarts Second To None), who went on to many more prestigious wins as a veteran and holds a special place in my heart.

Sharon and Ben Baratto have long been active Bullmastiff breeders, owners, and handlers. Their involvement in the breed has impacted too many breeding programs to count. They have been active in the ABA and have served the club in many ways. They are named as mentors by so many, encouraging breeder/owner/handlers and leading by example in and out of the ring.

When did you first see/meet a Bullmastiff, and did you always want one someday?

We had read about them, but over fifty years ago they were quite rare at least in this area. We had just lost a small dog and went to the Twin Cities one weekend with the idea of visiting a number of kennels and purchasing another dog. We stopped in a pet shop to purchase some tropical fish and I started talking dogs with a young employee. He mentioned that a person in the suburb of Anoka bred Bullmastiffs. We called and went to visit Joan and Earl Davis who had Sivad Bullmastiffs. They had a six-month-old pet female for sale. Sharon wanted her immediately. After having a six-pound dog for many years she looked huge. So, we went out for lunch and she convinced me that we should purchase the bitch. She was our first Bullmastiff. Her name was Sivad Sea Foam and her call name was Suds. That was before the age of contracts, but we kept our word and because we purchased her as a pet she was never bred. But, it was so hard in those days to get enough Bullmastiffs at shows for points that Joan called and encouraged us to show. Suds did get a championship.

When and where did you get your first Bullmastiff?

In Anoka, MN, from Sivad Bullmastiffs, owned by Joan and Earl Davis

When did you breed your first Bullmastiff litter?

We were not new to dogs, but new to showing, so it took a few years to get a championship on Suds. Even though she became a champion, as previously stated, we purchased her as a pet, so we purchased another dog from Joan and Earl and that one we bred. It was four or five years at least before our first litter.

How did you come up with the kennel prefix, Waters Edge?

We were living in Winona in an apartment when we purchased that first Bullmastiff. We left Winona when I got a job in Rochester. The following year we moved back to Winona and purchased an estate along the Mississippi River called Waters Edge. I believe that was 1967 and we started using Waters Edge as our kennel name.

Who have been your valued mentors over the years?

We would have to say Joan and Earl Davis of Sivad Bullmastiffs, Tony Schons of Tamerack Bullmastiffs and Carol Beans of Tauralan Bullmastiffs.

Have you had a favorite Bullmastiff over the years?

Many were our favorites over the years, but of course Suds being our first is fondly remembered. Zorro was our daughter's favorite. Many are so far back that they would not be remembered by people currently in the breed. One of my favorites that people may remember is BISS CH Gentleman Jack of Waters Edge.

What Bullmastiff do you consider the best you have bred?

As mentioned above, our Jack was a recent big winner and he was dearly loved and missed. But, Jack's sire Augie was a great dog, as was CH Lord Dan Book of Waters Edge. There were also females like CH Lady Kathryn of Waters Edge and more recently Meg.

We know that you have had Bullmastiffs. What other breeds would you bring home if the right dogs came along?

We have had a number of other breeds. We purchased two Dobermans, not to breed, but to show, and also an American Staffordshire Terrier. We also had two smaller breeds that we purchased for our daughter to show when she was quite young. Bullmastiffs are the only dogs we bred. We had a Fila Brasileiro for many years. She was a great dog and we have often thought of purchasing another.

What are the best attributes of the Bullmastiffs of today?

The attributes that one of our bitches possesses: She is a great family dog and great with our grandchildren and people she knows, but nobody she does not know is going to get into our house.

What challenges do you think today's Bullmastiff breeders are facing?

From when we started, the rears have greatly improved. We can remember them being very straight. As breeders, let's breed to the Standard, paying attention to type, substance and health.

Which Bullmastiff fancier from the past would you like to have lunch with today?

If we talk of just breeders from this area, we would say Tony Schons of Tamerack Bullmastiffs and Edna and John Bauers of See Ka Hei Bullmastiffs.

What advice do you have to offer those breeding Bullmastiffs today?

In breeding, follow our Standard and do not breed to a dog just because he happens to be winning in the show ring today.

What is the accomplishment you are most proud of when it comes to Bullmastiffs?

Over the years our temperaments have been consistently excellent. Gentleman Jack was bred, trained by us, and always owner handled and because of him the ABA honored me, naming me owner handler of the year more than once.

Glinda gave Dorothy that advice when she arrived in OZ and that is what hundreds of Bullmastiff fanciers did, heeded the good witch's words, packed up their Bullmastiffs, loaded up cars, vans, trucks, trailers, and RVs and found themselves traveling to Topeka, Kansas in late September. We all headed down that road to celebrate the 2018 American Bullmastiff Association National Specialty. What a celebration it was, from the independent specialties that kicked off the week, judged by Grace M. Fritz and James A. Moses, with sweepstakes by Marilyn Deeds and Roy Konkey, to the festive farewell party that brought the week to a close.

We may not have been in the company of the scarecrow, tin woodman, cowardly lion, but we all felt a little bit like Dorothy and her fellow travelers as we were caught up in the whirlwind that is a National Specialty. We gathered to show our dogs, feeling the specters of fanciers past and reveling in the company of so many current Bullmastiff breeders, owners, and handlers, of so many who love the breed as we do.

We didn't encounter any wicked witches during our time in Topeka, certainly none set on taking away our dogs, but the Show Chair, ABA First Vice President and AKC Judge Vicki Allenbrand of Blackjack Bullmastiffs, must surely be a good witch, as she obviously used some magic in planning and executing the events of the week. We all fell under the spell cast by the presence of so many scions of the breed and by the spectacle of hundreds of Bullmastiffs.

We didn't make it to the Emerald City, but Topeka's Capitol Plaza Hotel & Convention Center is a venue worth singing about, from the grand ballroom to the spacious guestrooms, comfortable restaurant and bar and the gracious and helpful staff. The Hospitality suite was full of good cheer and great refreshments.

Our National was judged by breeders known and loved by so many in the fancy. The Sweepstakes Judge was Christine Rasmussen of ExLibris Bullmastiffs, Futurity was judged by Julie Ahrens of Essex Bullmastiffs, and Regular Classes by Virginia Rowland of Blackslate Bullmastiffs. These judges had clearly been to see the Wizard before they judged, as they completed their assignments with brains, heart, and courage. Judge Craig Josling fielded 8 Agility participants, while Judge Jeanne L. Ramirez had 12 Obedience entries and 23 Rally competitors, with Wendy Barry-Conforti's Tryumphe The Journey Continues, Lexus, qualifying for her first leg in Rally Novice at only eight days older than the six months required for entrants. It is impossible to list all who earned legs, but Maureen Dudek's Beowulf Music Of The Dragons CDX PCDX BN RE CGCA TKP, Karuso, accomplished Double and Triple Qs and received his Rally Master title and her Beowulf To Dance With Dragons CDX PCDX BN GN RENAP NJPNFPCAXBCATTI, Dancer, was a silver medallion winner in our Triathlon event. The working dogs were impressive to watch, with the Working Wall standing as a testament to the many people competing in performance events with their Bullmastiffs.

The ABA Top 25 was an evening nobody will soon forget. Judges are kept a secret until the event begins, so the magic continued when Multi-Breed Judge Denise Borton, Handler Judge Erin Criqui, and Breeder Judge Pam Kochuba chose from a wonderful group of top ranked dogs and the fancy turned out in cocktail attire to celebrate our big winners. 2018 winner was MBISS AM/CDN GCH CH Knatchbulls 5th Avenue Marquee GROM, Marquee, bred by Helene Hansmann & Andreas Hansmann, owned and handled by Andrea Malatestinic. Our People's Choice Award was earned by AM/CDN

GCHS CH T-Boldt's To Protect And Serve, Marshall. He and his breeder/owner/handler, Sherry Boldt, moved most in the room to tears as they took the ring. The entry was perhaps the largest yet for this event and the attendees all gave it rave reviews.

We did find time to mix business with pleasure at our Annual Membership Meeting. With a quorum in attendance and several guests present, we received annual committee reports, an informative update from veterinarian Dr. Joshua Stern on the critical cardiac study that is currently ongoing, and elected the slate of officers and directors nominated to begin their terms with the start of the new year on November 1, 2018.

From darling puppies to venerable veterans, the Sweepstakes and Futurity classes showcased the breeders' best and the excitement built every day, culminating with Breed judging Thursday through Saturdays. Our Best Of Breed winner was MBISS GCH CH NV'S More Than A Crush, Crush, bred and owned by Vickie Platt and Nick Holland and shown by Ronie Whittall, our first junior handler to win an ABA National Specialty. Crush owned the ring and demanded the win!

Again, as Dorothy did in The Wizard of OZ, we all woke up when it was all over, wondering if it was real, or all just a beautiful dream. The wonderful rosettes, original trophies and the many friendships forged and renewed in the course of the week remind us that it was not a dream, but rather a dream of a National. Until next year, fellow Bullmastiff fanciers!

Co-Ownership:

The Joys And Potential Pitfalls

By Cindee Carlson

I know I've shared some thoughts with you about the joys and potential pitfalls of co-ownership in prior issues of this breed magazine. I'm writing this follow-up article because an attorney in New England recently called to consult with me about one of his cases. This lawyer's client is the owner of a top-winning show dog, and she is in a heated dispute with dog's co-owner/breeder. I'm sharing this in hopes of stimulating conversations which might help avoid similar controversies in the future.

So here the story goes... A breeder of quality purebred dogs – not Danes or Boxers or Frenchies, but just for the heck of it let's say he breeds Dobermans – has a lovely litter out of champion parents. The breeder raises the litter and then sells one of the more promising puppies (let's call him "Beau") for three thousand dollars, which is considered to be a fair show-potential price for a 10-week-old Dobe. Beau goes to a wonderful companion show home - a family with two children and a fully fenced backyard. The breeder retains co-ownership, which is discussed in passing at the time of the sale and indicated on Beau's registration papers. The breeder ("co-owner/breeder") and the new owner ("owner") talk about maybe entering Beau in AKC dog shows if he turns out, to try and attain his championship and grand championship. A few things are scratched out on a piece of paper and signed by the parties. This is basically a bill-of-sale stating the purchase price, transfer of the dog and his papers and that a co-ownership will exist. It is extremely casual.

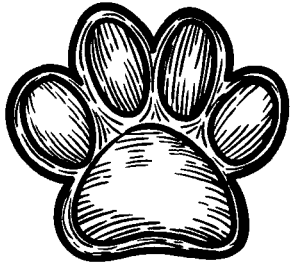

Although not discussed or agreed to, the owner assumes full responsibility for Beau's day-to-day expenses, including food, shelter, exercise, medical care and the like. Beau becomes an integral part of the owner's life. When the owner goes out-of-town, she boards him at the breeder's place – and the co-owner/breeder often shows him during this time and on other weekends or circuits. The owner always pays a full boarding fee, with no discount. Beau's owner and co-owner/breeder split some of the show entry fees, but the co-owner/breeder pays for most of them, handles Beau himself and covers his own and Beau's travel, meal and motel expenses. Sometimes, the owner transports Beau to shows, because she and her family enjoy watching him in the ring. Between show weekends or circuits, Beau lives with his human family as their beloved companion. As far as the owner is concerned, she and the co-owner/breeder have a good relationship about Beau. The fact that the breeder wants and is willing to show and handle Beau is like icing on the cake. Beau eventually becomes one of the top-winning dogs in his breed. In his breed, he ranges from #1 to #7 in the country.

At some point along the line, the owner finds out from another Dobe owner that the co-owner/breeder has collected and stored Beau's semen multiple times at various facilities. He has sold and released Beau's semen to other Dobe breeders. He has bred Beau naturally a number of times - at shows, at his home and elsewhere – without alerting the owner to the possibility of behavioral changes such as increased dog aggression, dominant behavior or increased interest in females. The co-owner/breeder set and kept all stud fees from Beau's breedings. He signed off on all litter registration applications for the resulting puppies. Beau now has numerous litters on the ground, with many of his offspring in the show ring. Beau's owner has no idea who owns those puppies or if their registration status is limited or full.

The co-owner/breeder never mentioned anything to the owner about the possibility of breeding Beau. He never told her or asked for her permission about collecting, storing, selling or using Beau's semen, or about the money he received and kept. He had no health testing done on Beau before selling his semen and services. Both parties now agree that they never discussed anything about breeding Beau, either verbally or in writing, until this dispute arose. Once the owner learned about the co-owner/breeder's actions, she contacted an attorney to determine what her options might be. That attorney called me to discuss the legal and practical implications of the case.

Try to put yourself in the place of Beau's owner. Would or should you be upset (or outraged) that your dog was collected and bred without your knowledge or consent, while being boarded or taken to dog shows by his co-owner/breeder? Do you deserve all or any portion of the stud fees collected without your awareness or permission? What are the potential consequences of your top-winning dog's semen being dispersed, with the resulting puppies being sold without – to your knowledge – any evidence of limited registration or breeding restrictions, health-checks or spay-neuter requirements?

Now try to put yourself in the co-owner/breeder's shoes. He paid for most of the show-related expenses and personally handled Beau during his very successful show career. In the absence of any agreement about breeding Beau, shouldn't the co-owner/breeder get some economic benefit from all he has put in, in terms of time, effort and cost, to showing Beau to the top of his breed? Shouldn't he be able to manage his own line and breeding decisions, since he put together the breeding of two of his champions that produced Beau? After all, he co-owns the dog.

As mentioned earlier, the parties only had conversations and very brief hand-written puppy sale agreement. It doesn't address anything about their respective ownership rights and responsibilities regarding Beau. Most of those are governed by individual state contract laws, and some by the Uniform Commercial Code ("UCC") as adopted and interpreted under state law. Dogs and other animals are still considered by most states to be "chattel," which means that they are considered to be personal property of their owner, like a bookcase or suitcase or sofa or shoe.

Sure, here the breeder was designated as co-owner on Beau's AKC registration papers, and this was agreed to by the owner and seller at the time he was sold. However, AKC registration is not legal title to a dog.

The AKC itself cannot and will not settle co-ownership disagreements. Those must be resolved by the courts. AKC registration is strong evidence of, but not proof of, legal ownership. In a contested ownership dispute in court, AKC papers and all other admissible evidence of title – such as where the dog lives and who pays for its food, medical care, show expenses, health tests and the like – will all be considered. Written contracts, if any exist and can be proven, are typically strongly favored by the courts. Verbal agreements would also be considered, although these are much harder to prove and typically end up in a "he-said-she-said" situation where the true facts are hard to determine.

The AKC is not fond of getting dragged into co-ownership disagreements. It defines them as "Non-AKC Disputes," on the theory that the AKC is not a party to any co-ownership arrangement, which is true. The AKC's 2018 Working It Out publication is a guide for dog clubs and the general AKC community on how they might resolve those and other disputes without the disruption and expense of lawsuits. In that publication, which can be found at https://cdn.akc.org/Working_It_Out_Guide__01.08.2018.pdf, the AKC confirms that it has long recommended that co-ownerships be avoided. It describes Non-AKC Disputes to include co-owner controversies where the parties don't have a written agreement setting forth all of the co-ownership terms, including how any future disputes will be handled. The AKC recommends that dog ownership arrangements be written and include details about any fees, spay-neuter agreements, health testing or guarantees, terms of co-ownership, restrictions on breeding, living arrangements and naming of dogs or their pups. Owners and co-owners can put a provision in their contract that spells out how they want future conflicts to be resolved.

The Working It Out publication contains a sample contract provision that people can consider including in their co-ownership agreements. Among other things, it provides for ownership disputes to be resolved by binding arbitration or non-binding voluntary mediation under the rules of the International Institute for Conflict Prevention and Resolution's ("CPR's") new AKC Protocol. The details of the AKC's recommendations are beyond the scope of this article, but again can be found online. The AKC Customer Registration Support Department will help owners and co-owners with AKC registration controversies – but not with other co-owner disputes – only after it is convinced that the complaining person has exhausted all other reasonable avenues of dispute resolution. With over 500,000 purebred dogs registered with the AKC annually, many of which are co-owned, one can imagine the backlog.

If owners and co-owners don't have a written co-ownership contract with a specific mediation or arbitration provision, a state court is the only place to resolve their disagreements once and for all. In those situations, what are the parties' respective rights and responsibilities? Who legally owns a co-owned dog's semen, and when (and by whom) can it be collected, frozen, used fresh-chilled or used naturally? Who gets to decide what bitches a co-owned dog can be bred to? Who decides the stud fee, and who gets to keep it or decide how it will be apportioned? Must any puppies sired or whelped by a co-owned dog be sold on a limited registration and a spay/neuter agreement, or must they go to so-called "show homes," and who gets to make those decisions?

For a co-owned bitch, who makes breeding decisions? Who decides when to breed her, and to what male? Who owns resulting litters, who decides the puppies' sale prices and who they will be sold to? What will be the allocation of sales proceeds among owners and co-owners? What if a show potential puppy doesn't turn out? Who (if anyone) will take it back, or take responsibility for rehoming arrangements? Do the owners/co-owners of the sire or the dam have rights of first refusal on any rehoming?

Who pays for medical care, and who decides what medical care is necessary or appropriate for a co-owned dog? What health tests, if any, must be done before a co-owned dog or bitch is bred, and who gets to decide and/or must pay for those tests? Who decides where to show the dog, and who pays for entree and/or handlers' fees? Who decides whether and when to start or stop showing? What happens if a co-owned dog seriously attacks or bites someone, either on or off the owner's or co-owner's property? As a co-owner, you always have potential legal liability for the acts of the dogs you claim co-title to, even if they don't live with you and especially if you have more net worth than the person the animal lives with. When we want the benefits of ownership (including co-ownership), we should consider the burdens as well. Personally, I'm cautious about entering into arrangements that may make me legally responsible for the actions of dogs that don't live with me and aren't under my control. But that's just me.

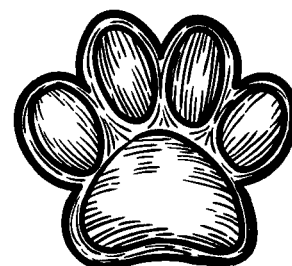

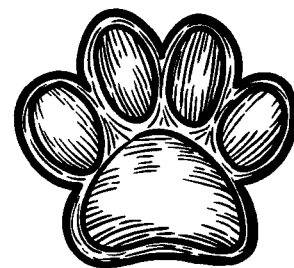

The list of these questions is limited only by our imagination. Many reputable breeders elect to co-own all or most of their show-potential puppies. Many do not. Some choose to co-own their sold puppies to have input as to where and how they are shown, to retain reins on which dogs they are bred to, and/or to be an owner of record if and when they obtain titles in the show ring.

These are legitimate reasons for considering co-ownership.

Another way to achieve the same goals is to have a written contract that doesn't involve co-ownership. The contract can address how decisions about showing and breeding will be made. It can provide that the breeder be added as a co-owner on the dog's AKC papers once it has achieved 10 points in the conformation ring, assuring co-ownership of the dog if and when the animal finishes its championship. The breeder/co-owner can be taken off the papers later, if the parties want to give the owner outright ownership after the dog's show career has ended or at any other time. The contract can provide that the dog or bitch not be bred without the written approval of all owners and co-owners, or by one or more of them but not all, and a provision can be added to set a fixed dollar amount or percentage that any non-approving owner is entitled to if the contract is breached. The document can contain a clause requiring prior written notice to all owners of any anticipated breeding, including the pedigree of each candidate.

Stud fees, whelping expenses, breeding decisions, puppy prices and most other common causes of co-ownership disagreements can be addressed in a straightforward written agreement. It doesn't have to be burdensome or filled with legal mumbo-jumbo. It might seem like too much trouble or too much ado about nothing to address all this. Can't all the details be worked out later? It might feel that way, until a disagreement shows up on your front porch. Certainly, it seems wise to think about these issues before blindly entering into co-ownerships with undefined parameters. Isn't it better to discuss, agree on and document these arrangements at the outset, rather than leaving them up to vague conversations and unspoken expectations that could eventually erupt? It seems smarter to clarify the major details about a co-ownership situation at the time it is arranged, instead of getting involved with lawyers and lawsuits and potentially damaging or losing valuable friendships and relationships.

Good luck at Nationals.
See y'all there.

Laser Therapy or Photobiomodulation (PBM)

By Sandra Statter DVM

Lasers have been used for years for a multitude of purposes, from military weapons, to routine daily tasks, to medical treatments and surgery. This article will discuss laser used as an adjunct to medical therapy. This function of a laser was first discovered in the 1960s when shaved lab mice undergoing low level laser treatment in cancer experiments were noted to grow hair at a faster rate than the control mice. Today laser therapy is becoming increasingly available in general practice veterinary hospitals. This newer modality of treatment has a wide range of indications, is extremely safe, does not require sedation, and can even be pleasant to undergo.

What is a laser?

Technically speaking, lasers emit highly focused Light Amplified by Stimulated Emission of electromagnetic Radiation. There are many different types of lasers and applications that vary according to the wavelength of light they emit.

100 - 300 nm = ultraviolet light (LASIK eye surgery)

400 - 700 nm = visible light (laser light pointers, barcode scanning)

700 nm → = infrared

700 -1,400 nm = near-infrared or IR-A (photobiomodulation)

1,400 - 3,000 = short-wavelength infrared or IR-B (kidney stone ablation)

3,000 - 8,000 nm = mid-infrared or IR-C

8,000 -15,000 nm = long-wavelength infrared (surgical cutting)

What is Photobiomodulation

In the past there have been many terms used such as “laser therapy,” “cold laser,” and “low-level laser therapy” causing much lack of clarity. In September 2014 the term “Photobiomodulation” (PBM) was agreed upon by the North American Association for Light Therapy and the World Association for Laser Therapy. PBM consists of the application of light with the purpose of promoting tissue repair, decreasing inflammation, and providing pain relief, using a low-power laser.

Although it seems like magic, PBM is scientific, evidence-based medicine, and many of the physiological mechanisms are clearly understood. Photons (fundamental particles of light) applied to the skin enter the tissue and trigger a biological cascade of events at the cellular level. One of the major effects occurs within the mitochondria of cells. This is the location of cellular energy production. As light is absorbed by chromophores (light responsive molecules) within the mitochondria, it leads to an increased production of ATP, the molecule that facilitates energy transfer within the cell. This leads to an increase in cellular metabolism and a variety of increased healing processes.

In addition, laser stimulation also produces free nitric oxide and reactive oxygen species. These molecules are involved in many physiological pathways. They have been shown to affect the inflammatory response as well as increase cell proliferation and motility. Outside the cell they stimulate vasodilation, improving microcirculation in damaged tissue; increasing oxygenation, delivery of nutrients, and removal of waste products.

Biological Effects

Anti-Inflammation (Reduction of redness, bruising, and swelling)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Vasodilation • Activation of the lymphatic drainage system • Reduction of pro-inflammatory mediators (prostaglandin, PGE2, and cyclooxygenase -2, COX-2) via the same pathways as corticosteroids and nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs)
Analgesic Effect (Decreased perception of pain)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Suppression of pain receptors • Normalization of the membrane firing threshold • Increased release of tissue endorphins
Accelerated Tissue Repair and Cell Growth (Speeds the healing process, resulting in more rapid wound closure)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Accelerates cellular reproduction and growth • Increases the energy available to the cells so that they can take on nutrients and get rid of waste products more quickly
Improved Vascular Activity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Significantly increases the formation of new capillaries
Increased Metabolic Activity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Increased ATP (cellular energy) production by mitochondria • Increases oxygen of red blood cells, therefore a greater production of nutrition for the cells
Stimulates Trigger Points and Acupuncture Points (Provides musculoskeletal pain relief)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Non-invasively stimulates points
Reduced Fibrous Tissue Formation (Reduces the formation of scar tissue)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Stimulates fibroblasts to lay down collagen and increases the normal fibroblastic repair process
Improved Nerve Function (Reduces numbness and impaired limb function)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Accelerates nerve cell regeneration by stimulating the sodium-potassium pump • Decreases scar tissue therefore lessening nerve entrapment
Immunoregulation (Improves immune function)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Stimulation of immunoglobulins, neutrophils, and lymphocytes
Faster Wound Healing (Effective on open wounds and burns)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Stimulates fibroblast development to produce collagen, which is the essential protein required to repair tissue injuries

Uses and Applications

Photobiomodulation is now used worldwide in chiropractics, professional sports, rehabilitation, and veterinary medicine. With the non-invasive nature of laser therapy it is often used as a powerful adjunct to existing treatment protocols and surgeries.

The therapeutic laser procedure can create little to no sensation or it can create a gentle, soothing warmth. A treatment session usually takes 2 -10 minutes, depending on the size, depth, and acuteness of the condition being addressed. A single treatment is usually enough for acute pain, while chronic pain and degenerative conditions will require multiple sessions.

Photobiomodulation can be used to address a variety of medical issues, including, but not limited to, reduction of pain, alleviation of inflammation, immunomodulation, promotion of wound healing, and tissue regeneration. The practical uses are nearly endless. Some common conditions veterinarians currently treat include: surgical incisions, cruciate ligament injuries, intervertebral disc disease, arthritis, "hot spots," lick granulomas, interdigital cysts, lacerations, abscesses, ear infections, ruptured anal glands, and many more.

Safety

Because of the low power, PBM causes no evident temperature rise in the treated tissue and no significant change in the gross tissue structure. PBM differs from other laser-type treatments in that it is not based on heating and it does not ablate or do harm to tissue. With correct procedure protocols, there have been no major negative side effects reported. In humans, tiredness, headaches, and dry throat, all temporary, have been reported.

There have been a few articles (studies using animal models of tumors) suggesting that PBM therapy can be detrimental when applied to a cancer site. There are also many articles that suggest the opposite and that light can directly damage the tumor, can potentiate other cancer therapies, and can stimulate the host immune system. There are also clinical trials showing increased survival in cancer patients who received PBM therapy. Because this use of PBM therapy is not fully understood, it is a common practice to NOT use PBM over areas of cancer.

The effects of PBM on an unborn fetus are unknown, so pregnant animals may be excluded from this treatment option. Because laser light to the retina can cause tissue damage and scarring, all humans and animals in the room need to wear eye protection. This usually entails goggles and “doggles.” Most animals are not bothered by the animal-designed headgear, but a towel over their head will also suffice.

Efficacy

The biologic responses of PBM have been proven with over 40 years of scientific study. There have been thousands of studies published worldwide, and research is continuing to advance this field.

A critical point research has shown, is the importance of selecting the optimum parameters to deliver adequate energy for the particular treatment. This is equivalent to calculating a dosage for a drug. The most prevalent method of indicating laser therapy dosage is the density of energy (joules) applied to the tissue surface area, expressed as J/cm^2 .

For optimum absorption of photons at the target tissue many conditions need to be met: the correct wavelength (nm), adequate photon intensity (W/cm^2), and adequate dose (J/cm^2). Patient parameters that will affect absorption of light include: depth of the target tissue, what types of tissue it must pass through, color of skin, type of coat, and type of lesion (whether the probe will have direct contact with the skin or not.) Luckily, the PBM systems provide preprogrammed protocols which calculate appropriate doses when the condition and patient variables are entered.

Where to Find A Provider of PBM Therapy

If you feel your pet may benefit from PBM therapy and your regular veterinarian does not offer the service at this time, you may want to contact a representative from the companies that sell the lasers. They may be able to provide you with a list of their local clients. Below are some of the laser companies:

Memories

Those of us who have reached a certain age (in my case 81 years) tend to do quite a bit of reminiscing. As I think back over a lifetime with Bullmastiffs I am filled with joy to have had this fabulous breed as a large part of my life.

I was born into a home with a Bullmastiff, Rita by name, who came from Cyril Leeke's Bulmas Kennels. She was my constant companion. She was very protective of me and would get between me and whoever was interacting with me. In addition to her duties looking after me, she became the mascot for the Aston Villa football team (soccer to those on this side of the pond). She was not only my companion, but the neighborhood alert during the war. She got to know the sound of the planes' engines and if they were enemy planes, Rita would go down into the shelter. She was so good at this that neighbours would come and ask if she was in the shelter – that was their key to follow suit.

In 1948 my parents and I emigrated to America. We sailed on the Queen Elizabeth on her maiden voyage after being de-commissioned as a troop ship. The last person I saw when we left England was Cyril, who met us at the train station with a Bullmastiff puppy in his arms to bring to America. We crossed the Atlantic in March so the winds were gale force but that didn't stop me from going up on the top deck where the kennels were located to see my puppy. The winds were so bad that they tied ropes around us so that we wouldn't go overboard!!

We subsequently imported several more Bulmas dogs and at that time we asked Leeke if we could use the kennel name Bullmast since all our stock came from him. He graciously agreed. One of our earliest imports was Ballet of Bulmas and Dad placed her in my name. She became the first champion on the West Coast. And was exclusively shown by me to her championship.

Dad and I were in partnership raising the Bullmastiffs together until his death in 1979. In the interim he became an AKC judge of the breed. I have continued to breed and exhibit Bullmastiffs until the present time. My Mom loved the dogs, but her interest was in the babies and she could identify pick of litter every time.

In 1964 I married the love of my life, Tom. He had never had a dog before but that didn't last long!! At one point we ended up keeping two males and I placed one of them in his name. We had a lot of fun campaigning the two of them and although Tom was not a fan of dog shows, he loved the dogs dearly.

In 1992 my dear husband died suddenly at 55 years of age. Looking back, I can truly say that but for the dogs I probably wouldn't be here today. They wouldn't let me be idle and needed my care.

I have been fortunate to produce numerous champions over the years although I don't breed extensively, only when I feel that I can produce something that will be a credit to the breed and most importantly a rock-solid temperament.

To all the wonderful breeders out there please, please, stay true to the standard. Your work is never done and you are the guardians of the breed. Be critical of your stock. there is no such thing as a perfect Bullmastiff and there never will be. I learn something new with every litter I produce and hopefully you do as well.

So You Got A Puppy

NOW WHAT?

By Blair Bunker

You furiously click on all the articles that pop up on your google quest for puppy advice. You want to do everything right but it's easier said than done. Your training should be about what works best for you and your puppy and it is important to find a trainer or mentor who can help you achieve the success you seek. If you don't already have that person in your fold then start looking around your area, ask friends who they use and interview trainers to find the best fit. This person will be an important part of your support system as you raise your puppy.

Raising a puppy is a fun and sometimes tiresome job! They come waddling into your life knowing almost nothing. Here is a list of important topics to get you started on the right paw with your new furbaby.

1. Routine- Create a routine for your puppy that will fit into your current daily routine. Think about what time you would like to wake up, feed, walk, play, rest. What does your daily work schedule, including extra recurring activities look like? Start a journal. Write down your perfect schedule as you would like it be. Then make up another chart of your current schedule with your puppy. This will generally include more potty breaks and waking up earlier or mid-night, additional feeding times, shorter workdays, etc. Each day mark off each activity and as your puppy develops slowly start to wean out the additional activities or increase time between them until you have adjusted to your preferred routine. This will happen over the course of 4-6 months as your puppy grows. Your trainer will help you through this transition. Not every puppy is made the same so try not to mold your puppy's mental growth or ability to adjust to an exact timeline. Nor should you compare to Betsy's perfect Golden Retriever down the street who was potty trained in a week and has been a perfect angel his entire life.

2. Rules and Boundaries- Think about your puppy as an adult. Do you want your 130 pound adult dog sprawled out on your couch, bed or in your lap with you? Are you ok with your adult dog jumping on guests in excitement or sleeping in the middle of the kitchen while you cook? Rushing out the door or pulling you down the street? If your immediate thought was "nope" to any of these then these are rules that need to be enforced now rather than later. Think about what you would rather see your dog do.

Sleep on a dog bed vs the couch or your lap, sit politely instead of jumping on you or your guests, stay out of the kitchen while you cook, sitting politely for an invitation out the door and walking by your side. Your puppy is largely being shaped by your reaction to his actions. If you show approval or even ignore a negative behavior and it leads to a pleasurable outcome it will be repeated. If you stop the negative behavior and there is a negative outcome it will be abandoned. It is important to provide your puppy with what you would rather see. Anytime "no" leaves your lips it should be followed with the correct action needed to create a better outcome. I know what you're thinking- easier said than done! I agree! Remember that support system I mentioned? They can help you apply the rules and boundaries that fit your lifestyle.

3. Socialization- The first 15 weeks of your puppy's life are some of the most important in shaping how they will view the world and the animals/people in it. This means that appropriate exposure to people, dogs, sounds, objects, places (literally everything) is crucial. Here is a list of some good social encounters -

- Your friends and family
- Their dogs/cats/other pets
- Lowes/Home Depot
- Park with leash laws (no dog parks)
- Puppy playdates with a training organization
- Puppy training classes
- Local breweries or other casual dog friendly dining establishments
- Take a short road trip to the lake, ocean or other fun outdoor destination
- Playground
- Vets office

Avoid taking your puppy to dog parks. There is no control over who comes in and no structure in the interactions. This could lead to a dangerous or fear inducing experience. Control all of the interactions your puppy has with dogs and people. Be sure to guide these interactions so that they are fun and not overwhelming. This means that you don't over expose. Keep interactions with dogs and people to one on one and slowly allow more players to the field. This gives your puppy a chance to acclimate and grow confidence in each interaction. Meet as many different types of people as you can -- old, young, short, tall, man, woman, dark, light, beards, hats, glasses, etc. Introduce a variety of objects as well -- umbrellas big hats, coats, walker/cane/scooter, rake, vacuum, skate board, bike, big trucks, balloon, cart, tarp, plastic bags, etc. Have fun with it. Continue to bring your puppy out into the world and keep socializing as they grow. The more it happens the more normal it becomes.

4. Chewing- Is your puppy trying to eat your rug? New shoes? Your beautiful wood table? Drywall? If you are nodding your head yes or cringing as you glance at the most recent damage done then know you are not alone. Not only is your puppy teething, but puppies use their mouths to explore their exciting new world. Here are three types of chewing you can expect from your puppy and alternative chewing items-

- Flossing- Just like it sounds flossing is all about getting in between the teeth to the gums. Perfect chewing items for this are knotted ropes. Soak the rope in chicken broth and freeze it. It will keep your puppy occupied and help soothe those sore gums.
- Shredding- Tearing and shredding are instinctual for any meat eater and their teeth are definitely designed for it! A few great items to add to your list can be easily found around the house.
- Empty paper towel rolls- Fold one end in and add a small handful of treats then fold the other end in.
- Oatmeal or small cardboard box- Peel off any paper or labels on the outside of the box and drop a handful of treats inside. Tape the top shut and hand it over. Puppies will chew up the pieces and spit them out like spit wads.

- Cloth Sack- Tear up an old shirt into square pieces no smaller than 8 inches long/wide. Drop a handful of treats in and knot it up. Your puppy should work to shred the cloth to get to the treats inside.

If you notice your puppy is swallowing or attempting to swallow the pieces these projects may not be a good fit.

- Grinding- This refers to the use of the back molars and makes up for a good bit of the chewing you may encounter.

Here are some great lasting chew items-

- Kong- Stuff it with goodies like pumpkin, peanut butter, sweet potato, rice and honey, coconut oil, egg, meat, treats, left overs and then freeze it. Not only is it a lasting treat but soothing on the gums as well.
- Raw Knuckle Bone/frozen- This is a great LONG-lasting chew for puppies and allows them to grind away and shred any meat off the bone. Never give cooked or smoked bones to your puppy.

- Elk Antlers- Another long-lasting chew that allows them to methodically chew to get to the softer center.
- Bully sticks- Not as long lasting but a great way to keep your puppy occupied for a shorter period of time.
- Starmark Edible Chew toys- These heavy rubber toys come in different shapes and have room for edible inserts.

5. Obedience and Sport Training- Don't put boundaries on your puppy's ability to learn based on breed. Every dog is capable of learning and doing just about anything you set your mind to. Get your puppy started in a puppy or basic obedience class. Even if you are capable of teaching these behaviors at home it is a great way to work around distraction and get helpful tips to ensure quality results. Make it fun and rewarding so your puppy enjoys the task at hand. The relationship you build now with your puppy will largely shape the success you both have as a team in the future. To quote a client of mine: "He will always be himself, and his perfectness will come in the form of my relationship with him and how we handle things together."

Raising a puppy can be a challenge but it has so much reward. There is nothing better than reaching all those milestones whether its 10 full days accident free, graduating from puppy class or a sleep filled night. Before you know it, you will be looking at your puppy all grown up and be thankful for the time and effort you put into him or her. The bond you will share will be nothing short of amazing.

Thanks to Blair Bunker, Owner and Canine Behavior Specialist at Heart Dog Behavior Training, for her perspective into welcoming a new puppy home.
